FASCISTS' ASSAULT CASE ENDS

Defendants Discharged
On Weak Evidence.
NO BODILY HARM DONE

London, Yesterday.
The three members of the British Fascists, who were charged with assaulting another member of the unit and forcing him to drink half a pint of castor oil, were to-day discharged at Westminster Police Court.
In discharging the men, the Magistrate declared that the case was not strong enough as far as a grievous bodily harm was concerned. — Reuter.
The case opened on February 24, and was continued on March 3, when the counsel for the defence declared that Symes and Sharman, two of the defendants, did not touch Richardson, the plaintiff, while Mills, the third defendant, hit him in self-defence.
Counsel spiritedly asserted that the three men were charged with assault. The question of whether they were black shirts had no more to do with the case than whether Bishops wear uniform.
Witness also emphatically denied that castor oil was administered punitively.
The reason for the alleged assault was stated to be because Richardson revealed information concerning the movement to a newspaper.

GOLDSBOROUGH'S AGREEMENT

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received March 10, 10.50 a.m.)
WASHINGTON, YESTERDAY.
PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT AND THE UNITED STATES TREASURY SECRETARY, MR. HENRY MORGENTHAU, ARE NON-COMMITTAL REGARDING SILVER. HENCE THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES' COINAGE COMMITTEE'S VOTE TO-DAY ON THE COMPROMISE ON THE FEISINGER-DIES PLAN WILL NOT AFFORD A DEFINITE INDICATION OF CONGRESSIONAL ACTION, ALTHOUGH IT WILL REVEAL OPINIONS DERIVED FROM PROTRACTED EXPERT TESTIMONY.
One Group favours procedure on different lines.
Representative Scrugham told the United Press that the decision regarding silver rests with the President.
"Silver is so intimately related with the entire monetary situation that its problem can only be solved by its incorporation with the general monetary programme," he said.
Representative Goldsborough has agreed to the inclusion of an amendment for the purchase of 50,000,000 ounces monthly to a maximum of 1,000,000,000 ounces, the purchases to be suspended whenever 371.25 grains of silver equal the purchasing power of 23.22 grains of gold. — United Press, per S. FOUR MEN INJURED

California, Yesterday.
Four members of the crew of the United States submarine, "Nautilus," were injured by an explosion in the crankcase, while 100 miles out at sea, yesterday.
The United States destroyer, "Barry," immediately headed full-speed for the scene, took the injured men aboard, and rushed them to San Diego. All four are expected to recover.
The "Nautilus" is expected to arrive here under her own power. — Reuter.

Chief Aim Of Present
Congress Session.

SENATOR ROBINSON'S BELIEF

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received March 10, 12.14 a.m.)
Newport, Virginia, Yesterday.
The Democratic leader, Senator Robinson, in a speech yesterday, said that the creation of a new agency to supervise the stock markets was the chief task of the present session of Congress.
He believed that it was belated indicative of the Administration's attitude and he was surprised because it was so sharply different to the Fletcher-Rayburn Bill.
He proposed legislation requiring publicity regarding manipulative operations, the imposition of "reasonable and increased marginal requirements," and the creation of an agency to supervise the exchanges' rules and regulations.

House Leaders Will Decide Issue.

RULES COMMITTEE DISPOSED TO ACT FAVOURABLY

Consensus of Opinion

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received March 10, 9.35 a.m.)
Washington, Yesterday.
The consensus of the opinion of the members of the House of Representatives' Rules Committee is that the expediting of silver depends upon the decision of the House leaders, guided by the wishes of the Administration.
Representative Driver said that the Rules Committee had not yet discussed silver, but was usually disposed to act favourably on measures if the Administration endorsed them.
Prevailing observers are of the opinion that the Administration does not want action it could be retarded on the plea that the President has already authorised help for silver by his executive decree, as for example, the alteration of the seigniorage on the domestic silver purchase.

INDUSTRIAL PRODUCTION UP

SPECIAL TO SUNDAY HERALD.
(By Telegraph, Copyright, Telegraphic Messages Ordinance, 1894. Received March 10, 10.19 a.m.)
New York, Yesterday.
Messrs. Dun and Bradstreet's market report states that the distributive volume in March promises to be higher than that for the corresponding months of the last four years.
It states that recovery is proceeding at such a rapid pace that some manufacturers foresee shortages of merchandise within the next six months.
Heavy industries are buoyant. The New York Journal "Analyst" estimates that the business index last week dropped between one and two points in anticipation of increased costs due to shorter hours and higher wages.
The Washington Commerce Department survey shows that general business conditions were moderately improved for January and the first half of February. Industrial production exceeded the seasonal rise. Factory pay roll declines are less than usual. During January, exports decreased and imports increased. — United Press, per S. C. Gold Bar Co.

OXFORD'S ATHLETIC WIN:

Record Broken
London, Yesterday.
Oxford beat Cambridge by 7 events to 4 in the annual Athletic match at White City to-day. Stanwood, the famous American at Oxford, created a record by winning three events for the second year in succession. He won the 120 Yards Hurdles in 15.8/10 sec., the High Jump at 5 ft. 10 ins., and the 220 Yards Hurdles in 24.9/10 sec. — Reuter.

SPAIN ON BRINK OF CIVIL STRIFE

REVOLUTIONARY OUTBREAK
FEARS CAUSE PANIC

Madrid, Yesterday.
The Republic of Spain continues to hover on the brink of civil strife. Socialist violence and frequent disturbances in several centres are keeping the population in a state of alarm, while Barcelona is arming to the teeth against Anarchists and gangsters.
Fears of a revolutionary outbreak are leading householders to accumulate supplies. Locksmiths and gunsmiths are reaping a rich harvest.
Meanwhile, the first step towards outlawing the Socialist Party and the General Union of Labour has been taken through instructions issued to District Attorneys to prosecute associations "planning revolution, even though it may appear to be acting legally."
At Palma Majorca, practically the whole population, headed by hands, marched to the Civil Governor's office to protest against the Government's decision to establish a concentration camp in the town.
The Civil Governors of several provinces have been appointed delegates to replace Mayors who are refusing to enforce public order and law.
The Governor of Saragossa has threatened to send students causing riots to the Canary Islands in accordance with the malefactors' vagrancy law. — Reuter.

WELSH RUGBY WIN OVER IRELAND.

Wooden Spoon Now Decided.

TRIPLE TIE POSSIBILITY

Sydney, Yesterday.
Ireland are now assured of the wooden spoon in the International Rugby Tournament.
To-day the Irish fifteen were beaten by Wales by 13 points to nil, which followed on defeats by Scotland and England. — Reuter.
Should Scotland beat England in the Calcutta Cup match at Twickenham next Saturday a triple tie will ensue. Scotland were unbeaten champions last season.
International Table To Date

	P	W	L	F	A	Pts
England	2	2	0	22	3	4
Wales	3	2	1	26	15	4
Scotland	2	1	1	22	22	2
Ireland	3	0	3	12	42	0

Last season Ireland beat Wales by 10 pts. to 5. In all games in the series Wales have won 26 times to Ireland's 16.

LIQUOR QUOTAS LIFTED.

10 DEATHS IN MONTH
New York, Yesterday.
The death roll among can Army airmen employed in carrying the American mail has reached 10 since the took over the duties, a month ago.
The latest tragedy, involving the loss of two lives, occurred at Cheyenne, Wyoming, yesterday, when a plane crashed and burst into flames.
Only a few hours earlier an Army mail-carrying plane crashed at Chardon, Ohio, while another one crashed at Daytona Beach, Florida. In both mishaps the pilots were killed. — Reuter.

THE BUDGET SURPLUS

CHANCELLOR OF EXCHEQUER
IN QUANDRY

Archbishop Of York's Movement.

MR. CHAMBERLAIN
DISAPPOINTED

London, Yesterday.
The Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Neville Chamberlain, has not yet decided how to dispose of the expected Budget surplus.
This was made clear in his speech at Birmingham, last night, when he warned that there was no wisdom in coming to a final conclusion until it is certain that a surplus existed, and if so, the extent of its size.
He said that the distribution of "some part of such a hypothetical surplus" was a weighty problem into which many considerations entered.
He had, at present, not come to any conclusions.
Mr. Chamberlain proceeded to refer to the movement headed by the Archbishop of York for ensuring that the restoration of the cuts in unemployment relief would be given first consideration.
ARCHBISHOP REPROVED
There was nobody who did not share the Archbishop's sympathy with the unemployed, he said, but when he read the letter which the Archbishop wrote to the press, urging those who agreed with him to write to their members of Parliament, he thought it a pity that the Archbishop should seem to imply that the members required a reminder for their humanitarian feelings.
"I regret also that he should have suggested that members are largely to be guided by the number of letters they receive rather than by their own judgment," Mr. Chamberlain added. — Reuter.

RESTRICTION OF RUBBER.

Issuance Of Statement

London, Yesterday.
The Colonial Office, categorically deny the widely circulated reports of the possible issue of a rubber restriction statement during the week-end. — Reuter.
It was suggested in interested circles yesterday that an official statement in regard to rubber restriction was likely to be issued very shortly, simultaneously at the Hague and in London.

AN ERROR IN LATITUDE

By James Dalziel.

"She wore life like a rose in her bosom." O. Henry.

"ZANETTA," said Captain Clinker, "was a perfect lady."

"Zanetta!" jeered Rorrison. "Zanetta!—and what do you know about ladies anyhow?" "Say, liddle, what do I know? Now if all that Maupassant, and Thackeray, and Kipling, and King Solomon ever wrote about the ladies was bound in one volume it would n't make a decent preface for the book I could write about them, bless them!"

"Don't you forget I was n't always on China coolie ships! Recall to your drink-deteriorated memorisation the fact that I did n't always have to foregather with things and larrikans off the Prayn, in the haunts of the black squad, but went to the Club like a gentleman. Yes, time was when I was an officer and a gentleman, no less, on a mail steamer with white passengers in the saloon, and gold bands on my cuffs. I would have been there yet, so I would, with oak leaves on the stem of my cap belt, if the 'old man' had n't objected to me having whiskey-and-soda in a ten cup on the bridge. Yes, when the Vle de Bohome bird said—"the proper study of mankind is women," he said a mouthful; and so it follows, just as the chaser follows the neat bugle, that the proper study of the officers of a mail steamer is the lady passengers. Now you keep your ears lifting and you'll learn something!"

To pursue your studies, liddle, under the most favourable circumstances, you must choose a ship making lots of latitude. Longitude is no help. It's latitude that develops the ladies. Latitude makes them or mars them. They eat latitude. On the Western Ocean nothing happens. Why, I ask you? Because you use up too little latitude. They come aboard ice, and they go ashore icebergs. They might as well be in the cold storage chamber, for any use they are to anybody.

Now take a ship using up lots of latitude, on the run say between here and Sidney, crossing the Line every trip. Things happen. The Line, my lad, the Equator. A great institution, the Equator. I never knew what it was for till I crossed it eight times a year. Now I know. With the blessed help of the Equator you see life.

You keep an eye lifting as they troop aboard at Sidney on sailing day, and what do you see? Just a tidy little lot of perfect ladies, without even a smile for a good-looking baggage officer. The way they speak you would think melted butter would freeze in their mouths.

The first few days out all so correct, you're scared to sit down on the same side of the deck with them. But the ship is heading North, eating up five degrees of latitude every day; and you, you've been there before, and you know what's coming to them. Say, you feel like grabbing the bridge megaphone and shouting—"Come off, ladies, come off!"

By the time you get off Townsville the thaw is beginning to set in. As a sign and a portent the cold-weather clothes disappear, and of a forenoon the old booker's decks blossom like a flower-garden with fancy skirts, peck-a-bo shirt waists, and dinky little white shoes. If you've got a skipper with the gumption to anchor for the night inside the Barrier Reef, and there's a full moon, and the summer sea and the tropic stars are all doing their duty and aiding and abetting as is usual and proper, then you'll be holding hands behind a lifeboat with something sweet in a deckchair by four bells in the first watch, if you've got the heart of a ho-sailorman inside your singlet. By the time you get to Port Darwin, where it's always ninety-nine in the shade when it isn't a hundred and nine, the thaw has become a washout, a landslide, and avalanche, as you might say, with everything sliding your way. Just little lumps of love, they are, lying round in long chairs, and the eyes of them saying—"Come and comfort me, sailorman, for my husband is far, far away!" And that's why I say Zanetta Mortimer was a perfect lady. She never thawed.

The way of it was like this. About two days out from Sydney I foregathered with the Second Engineer. You see I was of a kind, condescending nature even in them days, although I was the navigating officer.

"Waley," says he, being a disreputable blighter, like the generality of the black squad; "Waley," says he, "have you seen the penchorina in the second class?"

"I have not," says I, "the first class is my reservation. I leave the second class to you and the likes of you."

"Well, you've missed an eye-full, I'm telling you," says he. "Your first class dollies don't run ten cents in the dollar to our Miss Mortimer. So Waley, you ain't allowed aft the mainmast this trip, and don't go and forget it, not as long as I weigh fourteen stone against your twelve!"

Then he blew up, and went into peans, and panegyrics, and paragonics, and panoramas of praise of this female, and was delivered of poetry, and broke into song, till I was dead sick of it, for I knew he was after my goat. It's a play, thinks I; or it's all imagination; and then I remembered he was a Geordie from Shields, where imagination is as much use as castor oil to a graven image.

"Put on your jacket!" says I; "and take me aft and introduce me!" So he put on his collar, and tomatoed his hair, and otherwise dollyed himself in front of the mirror, singling all the time like a tenor in Italian uproar—"Zanetta, you must, you shall be mine." So we went aft, and I met the perfect lady.

"Here, enough of that!" interrupted Rorrison, "what does all this talk about a perfect lady mean anyhow?"

The skipper paused to eye him darkly. Eventually his clear, and his brow radiated a most divine consideration. He discarded his stump, and with a grant particularly proceeded to light another El Cabagó del Stinkadores. The audience waited. A passing cloud far up in the tropic blue stayed at gaze. The bar boy slept on. Then after a few thoughtful puffs, the oracle proceeded.

"Tis a term difficult to define. On the physical side the perfect lady is neither tall nor short, neither stout nor scraggy, but just a stock size as the dressmakers have it. And this applies to her hands and feet and figure, and every part of her. You can't take half a pound of flesh off her anywhere and stick it on anywhere else without spoiling her. If this, my lad, sounds like an extract from the Meat Trade Journal it's your funeral—you asked for it. When you see her face all the flowers of spring are singing to you. In her hair lives a million little lights that mind you of the coloured bulbs in the banyan trees of the Ming Yuen Gardens at China New Year. In her eyes you find all the navigating stars you learned at school asking you to take an observation.

The mental attributes of the perfect lady are much more more difficult an elusive of definition. Two things she must have—manners and manner. Without manners she will be a female hog, and without manner she will have neither distinction nor personality. That's a good word! She need n't be of noble birth. My grandmother ran a near-butter factory in Ballyscumduddery, County Tyrone, and I never heard that she was anything but a perfect lady. And take a look at her grandson, anyhow! 'Tis a moot point whether or not she should be virtuous. Virtue is in the heart of the upholder. She may be kind without being foolish, but she can't be foolish without being kind. She must have enough behind her ear to keep her in the middle of the class; and exude tone like an egg does meat. She must know the things to forget to remember, and the things to remember to forget. She must be sympathetic to all other frills, and all men must love her when they see her smoke on the horizon. A glance from her eyes hits you like a brick in the solar plexus, and when she speaks you take the count for ten, and your heart, soul, and overcraft are hers for ever and ever, Selah! Have you got that, Liddle?"

Mainly For Women

Peg-Top Skirts In Paris

Evening Modes Mould The Figure.

BEAU BRUMMEL feminine fashions from Schiaparelli show peg-top skirts achieved by short cowl swatches, shirrings, and pinched cone points at the back, all of which give emphasis to narrower hemlines.

Evening skirts mould the figure and may have trains, but this does not effect the peg-top intention with a hemline slit opening an insertion of taffeta for a little swish and easy walking width.

Crisp Silk Good For Day Wear

Paris Suits Feature Hip-Length Jackets.

CRISP, stiff silks look good for early spring and are excellent now for dresses that are worn under the fur coat. They work up beautifully into this slender, narrow silhouette, and look so different that they are extremely chic.

Taffeta, which in the past meant the bouffant skirt, is smart to-day only in a slim and tailored line. Worth's taffeta day dress, with satin polka dots and a frilly white jabot, is a society Ford for day-time in Paris.

Parisienne wear tailored suits all winter long for shopping and whatnot in the morning. They wear them under sports fur or cloth coats, mostly of three-quarters length.

The suit is almost always made with a hip length jacket and a narrow skirt. The straight or fitted jacket with tailored lines is in variably chosen by the smartest women. Flat or mossy wools are the materials of the suit this winter.

Sports Jackets Darker

Coloured Blouses With Tweed Skirts.

SPORTS clothes are worn with darker jackets to tweed skirts and coloured blouses. They convey the smart and practical note with a brown jacket composed to show above a brown and beige rough tweed mixture skirt, and beige cotton crepe coat, blouse, black, with black and white tweed skirt and tango yellow blouse.

Natural shantung is shown for a tailored jacket worn with a sapphire blue silk crepe dress showing a shantung chemise.

Shoulder Breadths Smooth

Evening Capelets Are Popular.

SHOULDER breadths are smooth and short bolero jackets are cut-away to fit the figure. Bolero jackets, sometimes have two diminutive fins set close together down the centre back and quite resemble the wings of a bird preparing for flight.

Crinkled taffeta, shot love-bird green and canary yellow, forms one of these models, while one in "Bot-ticelli" pink is worn over a "petit-bleu" gown.

Evening capelets make dainty details in filmy ruffled tulle, while a sweater coat style of glistening black cellophane blocked with narrow tartan plaided blue line checks brings an entirely different note to a white gown.

MONKEY FUR SWEATER

A THREE-QUARTER sweater coat of monkey fur dyed blue for day wear, with a soldier's blue dress and fox dyed the new eucalyptus greeny-grey shooting out from a high collar line to be carried in wing formation down the back, is a striking creation.

Necklines of blouses show ties or jabots, one in white plique simulating the shape of a fan and another looking particularly "dandylah" is edged with lace and worn with a white homespun linen blouse. "Typhoon" is the name given to a development of the "stormy-weather" line originated by Mme. Schiaparelli. It shows the forward movement in opposition to backward fin motifs, and offers a contrast from the silhouette in reverse that jut forward and point up in flat or coned flutes. Another fresh idea is the stiffened rever curled back in a flap.

The Sloping Shoulder

To Suit Latest Styles In Hats.

SOFTLY DRAPED SLEEVES

DECORATIVE frocks will have softly draped sleeves and fichus, and as the season progresses shoulders will slope to carry out the feeling for the more picturesque millinery; but the tailor's coats will remain square, neat, and trim.

The feeling continues for neutral and softer colourings. The Riviera modes rarely show any vivid shades. Those tones known as mushroom-pink, pigeon's-plume, pastel-blue, pumice-grey, and duck's-eggs belong to an age of longer skirts and larger brims.

Faded pink and faint lavender make appeal to the lovers of pastel shades, especially to mix with soft silvery greys. There is a lovely grey-green that reminds one of a tea or river. It is good in taffeta and printed silks. Dark skirts of thick silk and satin are much worn with lame or softly-coloured lace blouses for the semi-formal cocktail dress, under a fur or velvet coat.

Coat Contrasts

Plaids and tartans make their spring appearance for well-tailored neat skirts in tweed or silk and wool mixtures, also in cotton and silk. They look very well worn under smartly-cut severe cloth coats, either of hip or short three-quarter length. Many skirts button straight up the front. In some cases the coat part, whether of the short hip or Norfolk jacket style, is in the check, and the skirt in the plain fabric.

There is a revival of the differing coats and skirt vogue. It all makes for variety. Red and white in a small wool plaid looks very well for a pleated skirt worn with a short double-breasted coat of black tweed and Persian lamb collar, with a black cap worn on one side.

A number of dark, quiet evening fabrics are sewn with sequins. An evening frock in white crepe has decolletage and cape drapery woven in seed-pearls. A black wool cinema frock was charming with a sequin-sewn top, and another model in white wool mixed with silver and white Angora lace was very effective. In fact, all the Angora range is delightful, and look wonderfully well with a dash of metal thread.

Hooded Cowls In Fashion

New Backline For Day Created.

HOODED cowls fashion a new backline to overcoats and jackets for day wear. It may be that a double pinched effect will be followed. This applies to straight overcoats when link buttons at either side of the waistline obviate belts.

Contrasts are welded in perfect taste, and sapphire blue for an afternoon, ensemble worn under a black coat with brilliant black fox on the sleeves looks really charming.

CHOCOLATE HOUSE WIN CHAMPIONSHIP

Central British School Athletic Meet.

MISS P. HAMBLIN AND C. BANDER WIN

Good racing close finishes and keen competition featured the Central British School annual sports on the Schools' ground at King's Park yesterday.

Chocolate House won the Inter-house championship comfortably from Red House, thanks to the brilliant efforts of Miss P. Hamblin, who won the Victorix Ludorum and C. Bander, the Victor Ludorum.

Mr. J. Ralston, the Headmaster, asked Mrs. Ralston to present the prizes and said that he felt sure that, like himself, everyone had enjoyed a pleasant afternoon. Oscar Wilde had once imparted an opinion in ironical vein of those who taught others, but he would assure the parents present that it was on occasions like this that teachers were compensated.

The success of the day's sport had been due, in a great extent, to the friends of the School, Mr. E. Cock and Mr. Jenner of the Kowloon Flocks, Major Mannors of the Kowloon Football Club, and two special friends of the school who had presented Challenge Cups.

CLUB AND BANK RUGBY DRAW

McGilchrist Prominent in Debut Game.

CLUB'S HALF-TIME LEAD

The Hong Kong and Shanghai Bank drew with the Hong Kong Football Club in the annual rugby match played at Happy Valley, yesterday afternoon, the score being two tries and one goal (11 points) all. Scrupulous play featured the game, although several good individual movements were seen. I. McGilchrist, an Old Cranleighian and a newcomer to the Colony, being outstanding.

The Club opened the scoring through Moeke, McGilchrist converting, but McGilchrist was soon over to give the Bank an unconverted try. The Club, however, went further ahead before half time, Hutchison securing the ball from a scrum in the Bank 25 to pass out to Harbord, who touched down near the flag. No goal points were added.

At half-time the Club led by 8 points to 3.

Shortly after resuming, McGilchrist made an opening for the Bank when he punted forward. Moutrie followed up and secured the ball to score the Bank's second unconverted try. A nice three-quarter movement which sent Lawson over gave the Bank the lead, Robertson converting.

Following this reverse, the Club pressed around and were rewarded with a five-yard scrum, from which Hutchison secured the ball and cut through to give the Club the equalising points. Robertson failed with the crucial kick.

The teams were as follows: Club:—J. P. Whitham, K. Noble, W. B. Peers, R. H. Griffiths, W. Harris Walker, J. Hutchison, H. C. Moeke, W. R. Andrews, C. Austin, S. H. Garrod, R. Cherrill, A. F. Walkden, A. A. Harbord, K. A. Munro, D. McLellan (Captain).

Reserves:—D. M. Wheeler and D. K. Hison.

Bank:—R. P. Edwards, B. C. Allan, W. H. B. Bly, I. McGilchrist, A. D. Lawson, M. W. Turner, L. G. Robertson, G. C. Moutrie, I. H. Bradford, G. A. Stewart, F. R. Burch, J. T. Edkins, D. A. Cumming, F. J. McGugan, D. W. Mortlock.

Referee:—Dr. J. A. R. Selby.

TENNIS MATCHES THIS WEEK.

Three Games Arranged

The following are the matches arranged in the Hong Kong Lawn Tennis Championship this week:

Tomorrow—Captain P. S. Cannon and H. Owen Hughes v. Ho Ka-lau and Tsui Wai-pui.

Wednesday—J. W. Leonard v. Ho Ka-lau.

Friday—Lai Kwong-tsun v. Tam Yoo-fong.

F.A. LEAGUE LEADERS SURPRISED

SAINTS BEAT BORDERERS AND NAVY DEFEATED

CLUB'S LUCKY TRIUMPH

SENSATIONAL upset featured yesterday's local league football programme. The Lincolns, present leaders, the Borderers, and the Navy, both stern challengers, were among the vanquished, and St. Joseph's improved their prospects as a consequence.

The Club secured a lucky two points against the Artillery by the odd goal — the Gunners missed a penalty, besides having the best of the play. The Recoilo did exceptionally well to hold the Police, and deserved more than their one point.

In the junior division the Engineers caused a mild sensation by beating the Borderers.

ELLIOTT'S GOAL DECIDES.

Kowloon Surprise The League Leaders.

At Kowloon yesterday, the Lincolns met with an unexpected reverse when they were defeated by Kowloon by the only goal score. There was no score at the interval, and the winning goal was scored midway through the second half by Elliott.

After the interval, which arrived with the score sheet blank, the Lincolns set up a strong attack, and they went down the field in great style, Cord being severely tested with shots from Malpass and Ridley. Kowloon then attacked, and following a nice solo effort by Elliott, forced a corner on the left, which, however, proved fruitless.

Play was confined to midfield for some considerable period, before Bliss sent a long pass out to McKelvie. The veteran promptly sized up the situation, and pushed the ball forward to ELLIOTT, who opened the scoring with a fast drive, which gave Higgins no chance.

Kowloon:—Cord; Everett, Willis, G. White, Bliss, Dear; Eastman, V. White, V. Elliott, McKelvie and Blake. Lincolns:—Higgins; Stein, Edmondson; Clayton, Dunsley, Robson; Bish, McGuinness, Malpass, Ridley and Ho-quard.

Borderers Receive Setback.

SAINTS GOOD VALUE FOR SURPRISE WIN.

Whatever hopes the Borderers had of annexing the premier league championship were badly shattered yesterday when they were defeated by St. Joseph's at Caroline Hill by two clear goals.

This win places the Saints in a challenging position — they are now 3 points behind the league leaders, with two games in hand.

The game opened at a very fast pace, both teams settling fast quickly. A. V. Gosano was very early conspicuous for some smart clearances.

After nine minutes' play, the Saints drew first blood following a dribble by Leonard, who managed to evade three defenders before passing to B. Gosano. The winger met the ball first-time, and although Smith shaped well to gather the ball, it twisted off his arm into the net. A few minutes later, B. Gosano ran well down the wing, cut in, and fired in a stinging drive, which was deflected by Davies just in time.

Taking up the attack, the Saints forced a corner on the right, and from B. Gosano's flag kick, Rotha headed against the crossbar, with Smith well out of position. It was the Saints turn now, and they penned the Borderers in their half for a long period. Leonard obtained possession, and, together with Ward, indulged in a brilliant passing bout, which culminated in Ward tapping the ball forward for LEONARD to crash it past Smith.

In an effort to infuse some liveliness into the forward line, Mullane, the Borderers captain and right back, exchanged places with Herbert, but the Saints had the game safely in hand at this stage, and cleared all attacks confidently. The Borderers defence also played remarkably well during the closing stages, and the final whistle went without addition to the score.

East Lances Surprise The Navy.

MERITORIOUS TRIUMPH BY ODD GOAL

At Sookunpoo yesterday the East Lancashire Regiment recorded a surprise win over the Royal Navy by 3 goals to 2.

The first goal for the East Lances came ten minutes after the start when THOMPSON crashed the ball past Bayne.

The Navy endeavoured to equalise immediately, but Harnsworth in goal cleared several fine attempts to score.

Although the soldiers appeared to be the superior eleven, the Navy defence work was excellent and averted many an awkward situation. The second goal for the East Lances came from SMITH who hooked the ball into the net after Bayne had already attempted to clear. It was a lucky goal.

In the second half the Navy made one or two alterations in their forward line, Skinner being placed inside. The change improved the Navy's front line and almost immediately the soldiers had to clear from two corners. The Navy were just settling down to more steady football when the soldiers scored again through SMITH, who, following a corner awarded the Regiment, headed through a glorious goal.

The Navy decreased the arrears when, after a hot encounter around the soldiers' goal, Harnsworth ran out to clear and HAGUE dashed in to place the ball into an empty net.

The best part of the game now took place in the East Lances' area and the Navy added their second goal when a direct shot from HAGUE completely baffled Harnsworth and the ball found the net.

Navy:—Bayne; Grant, Courtney, Wilcox, Thomas, Rafford; Tong, Hughes, Langmond, Sanders and Skinner.

East Lances:—Harnsworth; Walkden, Gorman; Carrol, Thompson, North; Salmon, Horner, Smith, Woods and Tuley.

CHAMPIONS SCORE FIVE AGAINST "Y"

Losers Play Well In Spite Of Score.

GOALKEEPER OUTSTANDING

Although defeated by 5 goals to nil by the Hong Kong Ladies, Caer Clark Cup champions, at Sookunpoo yesterday, the "Y" Ladies put up a fine display in their final game in the competition this season.

The goal-scorers for the winners were Miss J. Dalziel (2), Mrs. F. Marsh, Miss R. King and Miss J. Churchill.

Miss E. Thomson, who left last night by the s.s. General Sherman, gave a good all-round performance for the "Y" Ladies, while Miss J. Weller, in goal, was outstanding.

Miss A. Fowler, Mrs. Read, and Miss O. Brown, were also conspicuous for the "Y", while for the winners, Miss J. Dalziel, Miss King, and Miss B. Pope, at centre-half, were prominent.

The "Y" drew with the Hong Kong Ladies in the first round.

H.K. Ladies:—M. Bird, E. M. Gray, B. Helling, M. Wallace, B. Pope, M. K. Lowe, F. Marsh (1), J. Dalziel (2), E. Bonnar, J. Churchill (1), and R. King (1).

"Y" Ladies:—J. Weller, J. Wilson, A. Fowler, B. Blumenthal, E. Thomson, M. Gardiner, V. Bradbury, R. Blackmore, M. Read, T. Dennis and O. Brown.

WEAKENED SAINTS TEAM WIN.

Fully Extended By Recreio "A."

LOSERS FAIL AFTER INTERVAL.

Fielding a weakened team, the St. Andrew's Ladies were fully extended to repeat their victory over the Recoilo "A" Ladies in a Caer Clark Cup Competition match at King's Park yesterday. They won by the odd goal in three.

They defeated the Recoilo by 4 goals to 1 in the first round.

The Recoilo put up a fine display in the first half during which period they scored their only goal through Miss A. Alves, after frequent opportunities had been missed.

They failed to maintain the pace, however, and fell away in the second half to allow the Saints to reverse the play. Miss P. Gittins equalised soon after the restart, and later Miss M. Woolley, at centre-forward, scored the decider.

The Saints were without the services of Miss J. Wong, their brilliant centre-half, who was indisposed. She was replaced by Miss I. Woolley in the pivot position and Miss A. Chubb played a good game as a substitute in the right half position.

Recreio "A":—B. D'Almada; M. Basso, C. Osmund, M. Remedios, M. Alves, L. Silva-Netto; L. Xavier, A. Alves, C. Silva, M. Roza and B. Remedios.

St. Andrew's:—Mrs. R. Rose; E. Lundell, G. White, M. Churn, I. Woolley, A. Chubb; F. Wong, I. Rogers, M. Woolley, I. Gittins and P. Gittins.

RADIO BEAT NAVAL LOWER DECK.

Awtar Singh Scores Three.

In a friendly hockey match at the Happy Valley yesterday, the Navy Lower Deck XI were defeated by the Radio by three goals to nil. Awtar Singh scoring all three goals.

Johnson, McKenna and Hetherington played brilliantly for the Navy, while P. Singh, J. Singh and G. Singh were prominent for the Radio.

NELL GWYN BURNS UP TRACK

DANCING BUTTERFLY PAYS $226.60

SOLDIER OF BRITAIN'S RECOVERY

THE RECORD-BREAKING RUN OF NELL GWYN (MR. BENNY PROULX) OVER A MILE, THE $226.60 WIN DIVIDEND PAID BY DANCING BUTTERFLY (MR. PROULX), SOLDIER OF BRITAIN'S (MR. NORMAN DEITZ) MAGNIFICENT, BUT UNAVAILING, STRUGGLE AGAINST DIANA BAY (MR. LEO FROST), AND THE COMBINATION OF KING'S BOUNTY (MR. Y. S. CHANG) AND SOLDIER OF ITALY (MR. DEITZ) THAT PRODUCED A "DOUBLE" DIVIDEND OF $23 PROVIDED THE FEATURES OF THE FIRST EXTRA RACE MEETING AT HAPPY VALLEY YESTERDAY.

His Excellency the Governor was given a great ovation as he led in his pony, Nell Gwyn, after her record-breaking run. The mare's quarters were 27.2; 25.4; 27.1; and 27.1.

Mr. Leo Frost, champion jockey who is going on Home leave on Tuesday, led the jockeys' list with two wins and two seconds, while Mr. Benny Proulx recorded two wins. Mr. L. Barban was again the leading owner with two wins and a second against Mr. Dynasty's two wins and a third.

A fairly large crowd witnessed an upset in the first race when Racing Boy (Mr. Heard), the red-hot favourite, was beaten into a place by Bistre (Mr. Pan), second best sub in 1932.

Mr. Proulx sent Fi Fa into the lead as eleven of the twelve starters got away to a good start, and was closely followed by National Day (Mr. Frost) and Iron Grey (Mr. Deitz).

At the Rock the position was unchanged with Racing Boy filling the sixth position. Entering the home straight both the favourite and Bistre came through with a burst with Racing Boy slightly in the lead at the stands. Mr. S. N. Pan called on his mount for a final sprint over the last 50 yards and the pony, aided by the slow race in the early stages, succeeded in obtaining the verdict by a short head. Mr. Deitz was only the same distance behind Racing Boy with National Day fourth.

King Salmon (Mr. Chang) was nowhere in the race and The Panther (Mr. Harriman) was left at the post. Bistre's win paid $39.20 and provided Mr. S. N. Pan with his first win of the season. It also upheld the 1932 sub, tradition of Racing Boy and Bistre always filling the first two places against all the subsequent subs.

King's Fancy Leads All Way. The fact that Lemberg (Mr. Lobley) had to be held behind the field at the start of the Novice's race ruined all chances of a Hem victory—the pony was the best in the race.

Mr. Jordan recorded his first win at the Valley when he brought King's Fancy first past the post after a well-judged race in which he held the lead throughout. He was challenged by The Red-shank (Mr. Ingram) in the back straight, but Mr. Hall's candidate cracked under the pace and it was left to Mr. S. W. Tang to bring Prima Donna, favourite through from the back to come within a head of victory. Mr. Choy rode Budge into third place, ahead of What A Chance (Mr. Poy) and Chief Seattle (Mr. Pearso).

King's Fancy paid $40.10 for a win, Spinaway (Mr. Paul Botelho) and Chief Seattle, second and third favourites, being unplaced.

Favourite Wins. Mr. Y. S. Chang, the only Shanghai jockey riding yesterday, rode a particularly good race on King's Bounty, the favourite, to give $22 a chance in the second leg of the "double."

"Racing Pride (Mr. Fung) was bursting with fitness as he went for a preliminary canter at the start, and it was only Mr. Chang's success in making a slow race of it that Mrs. Tang's candidate was prevented from winning.

Mayflower (Mr. Deitz) attempted to set a fast pace, but was quickly displaced by King's Bounty, who strided beautifully to set a blowy pace than was anticipated.

Coming up the home straight Racing Pride offered a serious challenge and was beaten by only a length after a powerful finish. Mr. Deitz brought Mayflower in just ahead of Navy Hall, second favourite, while Gay Crusador (Mr. A. Botelho) was fifth.

Racing Pride is in excellent condition and fairly surprised the public, paying $43.50 for a place.

Nell Gwyn Breaks Record. H. E. the Governor, accompanied by Lady Peel, arrived just in time to see His Excellency's pony, Nell Gwyn, shatter the track record for a mile, clocking 1.47.3, which bettered Mutiny Bay's time at the Annual Meeting by 7.1/5 sec.

Glorious Star (Mr. Butler) shot away into the lead from the gate, closely followed by Nell Gwyn (Mr. Proulx), Flummery (Mr. Black) and Just That (Mr. Harriman), but at the foot of the stands Nell Gwyn, second favourite, was in the lead and going away from the field.

Just That moved up in the back straight and was second at the Rock. Mr. Heard also brought Saucy Face up, but Mr. Proulx's lead was too great, and Nell Gwyn won with three lengths to spare from Just That, third favourite, who beat Saucy Face in a close struggle for second place. Flummery was fourth and Glorious Star fifth.

This was the season's first record and the Governor was loudly applauded as he led in Nell Gwyn. Princess Angeline (Mr. Frost), the favourite, was never in the running, and, as a consequence, Nell Gwyn paid $20.30 for a win.

Nell Gwyn's quarters were 27.2; 25.4; 27.1; and 27.1.

Mr. Proulx Again Successful. Not content with being responsible for a record being shattered Mr. Proulx caused a first-class sensation when he brought Dancing Butterfly in to win the Tytam Handicap from a field that included Classic Hall, Young Chap, Tiny Star and Surprise.

Adopting runaway tactics from the gate Mr. Proulx secured such a big lead that the field were unable to catch a pony on his last legs, and a dividend of $226.60 was paid out.

Classic Hall (Mr. Pan), a hot favourite finished nowhere, while Tiny Star (Mr. Frost) secured fourth place after a poor start—he was the sub champion at the Annual Meeting!

Mr. Ip Kui Ying rode a good race to bring In Good Time, an outsider, into third place and pay $65.90, while Mr. Deitz succeeded in securing third place on Young Chap, third favourite.

"Soldier" Stable's Challenge. Supporters of Diana Bay (Mr. Frost), were given many anxious moments before they received their $8.10 for a win in the Hong Kong Handicap. Soldier of Britain, unplaced in the Derby when starting favourite, came within a short head of providing the third sensation of the afternoon.

Getting away to a bad start Mr. Deitz rode "Britain" into a position alongside Diana Bay at the foot of the stands, and offered a serious challenge in the home straight where he actually led for one brief second against the one-paced Diana Bay. It was certainly a very close call for the Dunbar crack and reflected great credit on Mr. Deitz's riding ability.

King's Justice (Mr. Chang) secured third place, ahead of Cosack's Beauty (Mr. Heard) Brochin was exhausted at the Rock and finished last in the field of eight starters.

J. ALVES CHAMPION ATHLETE

Keen Competition At La Salle College.

St. Joseph's Win Relay

In a thrilling duel with some of the finest student athletes in the Colony, Joseph Alves won the Victor Ludorum at the third annual Athletic meeting of the La Salle College, Kowloon, yesterday on the School ground. Over 180 competitors took part in the thirty odd events.

C. Rozario won the Junior Championship, and Jerry Gosano the Midget honour.

Some very good times were established in the flat racing and the students gave a good indication of the challenge which they will offer in the forthcoming Inter Schools sports in April.

Bishop Valtorta Presents Prizes. The Rev. Brother Amal, the Brother Director, welcomed the Right Rev. Bishop Valtorta and the three Catholic Bishops who were present. He said that His Lordship not only took a spiritual interest in the children but also in their physical welfare.

He was pleased to note that the students had made full use of the facilities which the School offered in its extensive playgrounds and congratulated the successful competitors, and offered warm thanks to all those who had contributed towards the awards.

His Lordship then presented the prizes.

NAVY HOLD CHAMPIONS TO A DRAW

ARMY BEAT CIVIL SERVICE

A. M. Rodrigues, the University skipper, carried his bat for 103 against the Navy yesterday at Pokfulam, but the champions were held to a draw, their opponents nearly losing when going for the runs.

In the other premier league cricket game Lt. Garthwaite and C.S.M. Elvin bowled unchanged to dismiss the Civil Service for 66 at the Valley and enable the Army to record their second win of the season by 10 wickets.

In the junior league the Recreio concluded their fixtures with a big win over the Police, the Service Corps surprised Kowloon, the University beat Civil Service, and the Club overcame the Engineers.

THE ROMANTIC OPIUM CLIPPERS.

The Swift Ships That Took
The Drug To China

"Red Rover's" Race
With "Sylph"

By A. G. MACDONELL.

It was in 1729 that the Chinese published their first edict against the importation of opium into the Celestial Empire. The trade, which had been almost entirely in the hands of the Portuguese, had consisted of about two hundred chests a year, dispatched from India and landed at Macao.

But in the thirty years during which the trade had been in existence, the Chinese had begun to acquire a definite liking for the pernicious habit of opium-smoking, and a lively contraband commerce sprang up, so that by about 1760 at least a thousand chests were being dispatched annually from India.

The Chinese authorities fully understood the menace and did everything in their power to prevent it, but they were up against a very formidable opposition. For the profits of opium-smuggling were enormous, and a powerful vested interest had steadily grown up.
Indeed, the greatest of all the Eastern trading companies, the honourable East India Company itself, took a hand in the illicit game in 1781, when Warren Hastings, Governor of Bengal, sent a cargo of opium to China.

A Vicious Circle.
It is one of the horrible things about opium smoking that the supply of the drug creates the demand.
The more an addict smokes, the more he wants to smoke, and thus the contraband trade grew greater in volume and value.
Prices soared, and as they soared least creditable episodes in the

they attracted new traders.
It was one of the most perfect examples of a vicious circle, in every sense of the phrase, that there has ever been.

In 1831 there were no fewer than seventy-three firms, British, American, and Parsee, as well as the East India Company, operating in the Chinese opium trade. It was a very serious financial matter, therefore, when the Celestial Emperor, in 1834, made a last really resolute stand against the drug and appointed Commissioner Lin with full powers to put a stop to the "inflow of black dirt and the outflow of good silver."

Commissioner Lin's Success.

Lin was a strong man, and the merchants, who by this time actually owned 20,000 chests of opium in the country, to the value of twelve million dollars, clubbed together and tried to buy him off with a thousand chests. Lin refused contemptuously, and a regular siege of the European Quarters in Macao and Canton began. The merchants, after a short resistance, saw that the game was up, temporarily at any rate, and surrendered the opium on the guarantee of the British Naval Commander that the British Government would reimburse the firms.

Commissioner Lin proceeded to destroy it all, and the price of a chest which was selling at 250 dollars in Singapore rose immediately to 3,000 dollars inside the city of Canton.

What followed was one of the least creditable episodes in the annals of the British Empire. An immensely lucrative trade had been lost, and it was decided to recover it by force of arms. Advantage was taken of various minor incidents such as the kidnapping of a sea-captain and the attack on a coaster belonging to Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Company, war was declared, and an expeditionary force sent from India. It consisted of six regiments of infantry and the Madras Artillery, and a number of small warships which made hay of the Chinese junks. In the subsequent treaty Hong-Kong was ceded to Britain, and, discreetly, no mention was made of opium at all.

But in the following year, 1842, the drug was quietly slipped on to the list of legitimate articles of import.

Danger And Profit.

In essence, there was a highly dangerous and a highly profitable trade. And the men and the ships were there to handle it. In the recorded history of ocean-faring from the days when Jason and his crew of heroes rowed away "from Iolchos by the sea," there have always been men ready for the most desperate adventures. The Phoenician galleys, which came for tin from Tyro to Cornwall, Karl Thorsolfne, who went to America by way of Greenland, Drake and Cook and Sabot and Columbus, and Nansen and Scott and Shackleton and Amundsen—each and all were in the same tradition as these men who went out in their swift and graceful clippers to run opium from the Bay of Bengal to Macao, and north past Formosa, and to Shanghai and into the uncharted perils of the Yellow Sea. They had to fight against typhoons and rocks and pirates. A failure meant death by drowning or by torture.

But there were always the men available.

The first of the opium clippers
was the Red Rover, and her captain, one Clifton, was the right man to handle her. She sailed from Singapore on January 26th, 1829, with 300 chests of opium on board, into

WISE & OTHERWISE

Sworn At

"How much was old Brown's estate sworn at?" Jones asked a friend of the old fellow's family.

"Quite a lot, so I'm told," he was informed.

"Really, you surprise me," said
Jones. "I was under the impression that he left practically nothing."

"You were right," said the other,
"that's why it was sworn at quite a lot."

USELESS.

One of the big banks is to introduce a new system of savings accounts. It is not known what for.

So long as that which might have been isn't why worry about it?
Worry is only interest paid on trouble that may never become due.

His Motto

The school teacher was giving her class a talk on the sayings of the wise.

"Now, here is a very good example of what I mean," she said.
"It is more blessed to give than to receive."

"Teacher," piped up little Tommy, "my father says he always sticks to that motto in his business."

"How noble of him!" said teacher. "I'm sure he must be a very fine man. By the way, Tommy, what is your father's profession?"

"Oh, he's a boxer!" replied the boy proudly.

Success is a goal usually reached by those who employ their time in cultivating a more definite aim in life rather than in searching for a larger target.

Overworked

An old crofter went to a horse sale, where he met a dealer who showed him "just what he wanted."

"A grand worker, sound in wind
an' limb, wi' no 'a' fault 'aboot
him," said the dealer. "The last
pint."

"A grand worker, sound in wind
an' limb, wi' no 'a' fault 'aboot
him," said the dealer. "The last
pint."

"Where's the cashier?"
"He's gone to the races."
"In business hours?"
"Yes, sir. It's his last chance of getting the books to balance."

Tit for Tat

The bus conductor had not noticed the hole in the threepenny bit until he had gone well down the bus. After he had finished collecting he returned to the cul-

"Here, guv'nor," he said, thrusting the coin before the man.
"What's this?"

"What's what?" asked the fare collector. "Look, it's got a hole in it."

"Well, what about it?" said the conductor. "So has the ticket you gave me."

Calling Them Names

Mrs. Smythe-Jones was making the final arrangements for her reception.

"Jane," she said, to her new maid, "for the first thirty minutes after six o'clock I want you to stand at the drawing-room door and call the guests' names as they arrive."

Jane's face lit up.
"Very well, ma'am," she replied.
"I'll do my best. I suppose the first thing that comes into my 'ead about them will do?"

The men who try to do something and fail are infinitely better than those who try to do nothing and succeed.

Half-minutes in Harley-street.

"What was the foreign substance
you took away from old Goldbags at his operation?"

"Five hundred guineas."

Easily Explained

"So you actually admit that you saw the man in the dock strike the victim and then take to his heels, while you made no attempt to stop him?" said the magistrate to the witness.

"That's right, sir," said the man,
without the least hesitation.
"But don't you consider that a very unmanly action on your part?" asked the magistrate.

"I was more interested in the victim," went on the witness, evading the question. "I was wondering whether the attack would prove fatal."

"Was that of any great importance to you?" asked the other.

"It certainly was," replied the witness. "I happen to be marrying her daughter next week."

An Old Joke.

In the first years of married life
it takes stew to make a quarrel.

What's the good, I says, of 'avin' a idee unless you tries it out? It's as silly as buildin' a fine 'ouse and then sittin' on the bloomin' doorstep in the rain.

Millions of Gallons maturing—
Older and better than ever

Never was your White Horse as good or as old as it is to-day. Years ago, exceptionally heavy stocks of the finest whiskies were laid down to anticipate sales which the quality would justify. These stocks are now fully matured. The result is that WHITE HORSE is now older and better than ever before, excellent as it was in 1932 and preceding years.
This advance in quality and age will be maintained.
White Horse is now the equivalent of a fine liqueur.

the teeth of the north-east monsoon. Captain Clifton "worked the Red Rover, tack by tack, up the middle of the China Sea, and averaging about 100 miles a day dead to windward, anchored in Macao Roads on February 17th, twenty-two days out from Singapore Strait." Twenty days for a passage of about two thousand miles, including adverse currents against a head wind, was a fairly remarkable performance.

When The "Ariel" sank. The Red Rover was quickly followed by other clippers, as soon as she had proved that the monsoon could be defeated. An astute Parsee, Rustomjee Cowasjee, at once sent to the best ship-designer in England, Sir Robert Seppings, and commissioned from him the strongest and fastest 300-tonner that he could devise. The result was the Sylph, one of the fastest sailing ships that ever went into the China Sea. Then came Forbes, a Scottish-American with a genius for navigation, organization, and keeping his head. One day his ship, Ariel, sank under him; he was saved, and on his way back to land in the rescuing yacht, happened to pass a schooner in which Ariel's owner was out for a sail. The owner shouted, "I'm just off to give the Ariel a trial," to which Forbes replied: "Give my respects to the crabs and lobsters." In 1834 Red Rover and Sylph raced from Calcutta to Canton, and the Sylph won by two days, forty-one against forty-three from pilot to pilot. But Captain Clifton was not satisfied with the result and made a challenge for the return journey and won by no fewer than fifteen days.

Year after year the clippers went out on their swift voyage. Sometimes they were wrecked through trying to cut corners too fine; sometimes they were attacked by fleets of ferocious Malayan pirates; sometimes they were cast ashore on the terrible island of Formosa, the inhabitants of which were the most pitiless of all the torturers and murderers of those perilous seas forlorn. But the officers and the crews were quite undaunted, and everyone concerned in the traffic became richer and richer.

The Coming Of Steam. After the Opium War the traffic went on more briskly than ever. In August, 1841, nine ships arrived in the harbour of Hongkong, and twenty-seven altogether during the last five months of the year. But steam was gradually beginning its inevitable invasion, and though the trade flourished, the clippers began to feel the pinch. The last of them was the Wyand, and she was built in 1854. In the 'sixties the casualties began to thicken. Some were broken up, others lost at sea, others sold or sent away to loss adventurous trade routes, and others captured and looted by pirates.

And then came the great financial crash of 1865, the year of the panic, when ten-fraights fell to $3 a ton and many of the famous old Hongkong firms went down. One of the survivors was the huge concern of Jardine, Matheson and Company, but the clippers had been dealt their final blow and the trade went into steam, and the romance of it went out. For, although it was, and still is, an iniquitous traffic, nevertheless it is impossible to deny that there was romance in these lively little ships which sailed out so gallantly and at such astonishing speeds into the China Sea. And they were manned by men like characters in Conrad's books.

Mr. D. W. Phillips to act as Assistant Inspector of Labour, Factories and Workshops.

for his book, and it was made an exceptionally difficult job by the secrecy with which the contraband voyages were made. After all, men who are setting out to dodge the law, and fleets of pirates as well, are not inclined to advertise their intentions, their dates of departure, the size and nature of their cargoes, and the routes by which they propose to travel.

But in his twenty-five years Mr. Lubbock has unearthed an amazing amount of material which, without him, would have been lost for ever, and by doing so he has earned the gratitude of all who take an interest in these materialistic days, in the recollection of romance.

HONG KONG, SUNDAY, MARCH 11, 1934.

Local Investment.

It is an old saying that it is easier to make money than to keep it. Of course you have first got to make your money, which is not so easy now-a-days in Hong Kong, or for the matter of that any where else. But the slump will not last forever, though this present depression certainly looks like breaking the record. The trouble is of course that it is world-wide, whereas the slumps we have previously experienced have either been merely local or some other where. If merely local we struck them more or less cheerfully knowing from past experience that the condition was temporary, if else-where we managed to view them with that detached and philosophical calm with which humanity endures other peoples' troubles. But even this slump will pass, must pass, if the world as we know it is to keep on functioning. Some day trade will be back to normal, some day commodity prices will have risen, some day the nations will have seen the folly of dumping and of shipping subsidies, some day China will reduce her import duties to a common-sense figure, some day the smuggler will cease from troubling and the legitimate trader come into his own, some day the hotels will be full of tourists, some day all the local companies will again be on a dividend-paying basis, the sweep on the Champions will fill up, we'll be buying new motor cars, Ice-House Street will be one immense smile, and Kowloon Tong will be moving en masse up to the Peak. Some day! Aye, and we'll all be looking for sound investments for our savings. We are not thinking of the Get-Rich-Quick-Wallingtons, or of the man who wants a gamble. We are thinking of the sensible lad who pines to soak away his little lot in something that's going to give him a safe five per cent. with perhaps a chance of some small capital appreciation as the years go rolling by. Not ten per cent. one year and nix for the two following, but a continuing and assured five per cent. Some thing in fact with the recognized security of a Trustee Stock, associated with the idea of the "lily chance" so dear to the mind lowly yet financially-minded native. Now any firm of professional trustees, or any private individual unfortunate enough to be landed by an inconsiderate late lamented with a trustee's job, will tell us that such investments are hard to find, and growing scarcer every year as the Colony develops and the demand increases. Industrial companies of any size may be ruled out, the investing public has been hit too hard and too often in the same tender spot by industrialists of late years. How then are we to invest our hard-earned savings when the great day comes that saving is again possible. Accumulated experience in Great Britain has proved to the investor that the best and safest form of investment yet devised is the Financial or Investment Trust. Now Hong Kong has never had an Investment Trust, but we are convinced that the best way to ease the present situation would be the formation of such a Trust, and that it would not be beyond the ability of our respected financiers to float successfully such an entity if they laid their heads together. Taking 1929 as a normal financial year the total capital of British Investment Trusts amounted to $288,000,000. How then do these Trusts function? The investment framework of the Trust is so constructed that its risks are widely distributed, and only a condition of international chaos can really threaten its solidity. The normal returns on the Debenture Stock are from 5 1/4 to 5 1/2 per cent. and on the Preference Stocks from 5 1/4 to 5 1/2 per cent. Attention may be called to the economy of administration which distinguishes the leading Trusts. In certain cases administration expenses absorb less than one third of one per cent. of the Company's Capital, it seldom exceeds five-eighths of one per cent., and in view of the results obtained this seems undoubtedly a very small fee for placing one's financial affairs in expert hands. From the point of view of the holders of Ordinary Stock the Investment Trust offers not only a sound security but also the prospect of Capital Appreciation in one form or another resulting from the continued progress of the Company. Ordinary Shareholders may expect to receive their advantage in one of three ways:—(a) Increased dividend distribution. (b) Increase of nominal Capital on bonus terms. To summarize:—(c) New Issue of Capital on bonus terms. To summarize:—Owing to the wide distribution of investments the shareholder gets the maximum of security with the minimum of risks. An Investment Trust floated here would require a Board of Directors in Hong Kong, an Expert Financier in London, to select securities, with a board of three directors there to oversee his operations. With the dollar as it now is it is doubtful if the thing would be worth while, but with a dollar at two shillings, or over, the Trust should fill the bill to perfection.

GOVERNMENT HOUSE FUNCTIONS

Many Social Activities During Week.

The social activities of His Excellency the Governor, Sir William Peel, K.C.M.G., K.B.E., and Lady Peel, and the Government House functions for the week ending Saturday, are shown in the following official communique issued from Government House, yesterday.

Lady Peel was present at a bridge party in aid of the funds of the Ministering Children's League at the Helena May Institute.

Lady Peel, attended by Captain Walter, presided at the Annual Show of Flowers and Vegetables by the Hong Kong Horticultural Society.

His Excellency the Governor and Lady Peel were present at the wedding of Miss Rosemary Lucy May to Mr. John Crowe Richardson, His Excellency giving away the bride. A reception was held afterwards at Government House.

Lady Peel, attended by Captain Walter, was the guest of the Society of Yorkshiresmen in Hong Kong at their cabaret dinner dance at the Hong Kong Hotel.

His Excellency and Lady Peel, attended by Captain Walter and Mr. Pilcher, were present at the First Extra Race Meeting of the Hong Kong Jockey Club.

CHINESE STUDENTS HONOURS RECORD

Brilliant Career At Cambridge.

CLEAN SWEEP OF PRIZES

London. Lim Kheng Kool, a Chinese law student, has been making a clean sweep of prizes and scholarships—since he came to London.

He started his career in Penang (Malaya) in 1927, when he won a scholarship that took him to Cambridge.

Entering St. John's College in 1928, he:

Secured a first-class pass in the law qualifying examination.

Won the Wright prize for the most distinguished work in law.

Obtained first-class honours in the second division of the Law Tripos (Part Two).

Secured a foundation scholarship of £60 a year for two years.

Receive a special college prize in books.

Later he won a special prize of £50. In June, 1932, he was awarded the McMahon Law Scholarship (valued at £200 a year for five years).

His latest exploit has been to carry off a 100 guineas prize in a special examination held by the Inner Temple.—Reuter.

CITY FLOODED BY LOCUSTS.

Strange Visitation Welcomed.

Johannesburg. Millions of locusts rained down during the lunch hour in Johannesburg for over half an hour.

By the end of that time, the streets and pavements were blackened with crawling swarms and the people had to wade through them and shake the insects from their clothes.

Women fled for cover. But the pests rained over their clothes and there were some hysterical scenes.

At last a downpour of real rain washed the city clean. Natives collected armfuls of the insects and appeared thoroughly to enjoy the visitation. They eat locusts.—Reuter.

HONG KONG AND THE NEW TERRITORIES. — No. 95.

The Indian Civet.

In Notes No. 93 we described briefly a mature specimen of the Little Spotted Civet weighing 6 1/2 lbs. obtained from Sal Kung. A magnificent full grown specimen of the Indian Civet Viverra zibetha, weighing 17 lbs. was trapped on 3rd March in the Shing Mun Valley and very kindly sent us by a friend. The body and head measured 27 inches and the tail another 17 1/2 inches and the tail another 17 1/2 inches. This Civet was grizzled black and white with the flanks more tawny and below dusky and white. It has certain well defined markings which serve to distinguish it easily from any other local species. (1) On the throat extending from ear base to ear base are alternate white and black markings, from the black chain the half rings are narrow white, narrow black, broad white one inch in width in middle of throat, broad black, three quarters inch white and finally narrow black. (2) The tail is marked with seven broad black and six narrow white rings. The first three black rings have a percentage of brown hairs. (3) Along the back from behind the head is a black stripe; in our specimen it runs across the first two white tail rings. (4) The haunch has four definite and two indefinite black wavy bands. (5) The feet are very dark, almost black.

The Lam Tsun Valley. We are very grateful to our friends who have sent us these two Civet Cats and would now very much like to know whether the third species, the Gem-faced Civet, which has no rings on the tail, also occurs in the Colony.

BRITISH FILMS FOR COLONIES

Board Formed To Make Big Drive.

TWO CONCERNS COMBINE

London. British film producers are making a big drive to show their films in the British Colonies and Dependencies.

A new board has been formed of officials of the Gaumont-British Corporation and British United Film Producers, and the Colonies affected will include Nigeria, Sierra Leone, Kenya, Northern and Southern Rhodesia, British Guiana, British Honduras and the West Indies.

British United Film Producers was formed two years ago with the financial support of the Colonial Office, and though it has been handicapped by lack of funds, it has already managed to distribute 2,000,000 feet of British film.—Reuter.

HOLLYWOOD FINDS NEW MAE WEST.

Volcanic Dancer With "Hard-Boiled" Voice.

Hollywood. Hollywood claims to have found another and a hotter Mae West.

She is Pert Kelton, a 22-year-old dancer, with hazel eyes, a "hard-boiled" voice, and a volcanic personality.

Her successes up to the moment are "The Bed of Roses" in which she plays with Constance Bennett and "The Bowery" a film of New York night life at the beginning of this century.

Pert was also engaged by Goldwyn to play with Anna Sten in "Nana". The film was made in Hollywood, and then shown to Goldwyn, and then scrapped. "Nana" was later re-scraped without Pert Kelton.—Reuter.

The afternoon of 3rd March was spent in our favourite bird district, the Lam Tsun Valley and though it was not an ideal day a number of interesting birds were seen in the total of 20 species. As we sat on the common behind the Hang Ha Po wood and ate our belated lunch several of the common species were identified, tits and tailor-birds, white-eyes and Richard's pipits and a number of Chinese bulbuls. A small flock of sparrow-like birds perched on a near-by hedge one had red on its head and neck; but before details of its plumage could be noted the party flew away. The species might have been the Ruddy Sparrow or a kind of Bunting but identification was not possible.

The Black-winged Cuckoo-Shrike.

Later we observed a small Owl, a jet black male Koei, crested Bulbuls, a Daurian Redstart, Black-necked Mynahs, a Japanese Buzzard and other common species. A Crow Pheasant was heard calling in the distance, the first heard this year. The great find of the day, however, was a Cuckoo-Shrike. This species, Lalage melaschista avensis (Blyth), has not been previously recorded by us from the Colony. In colour it is steel grey throughout, above and below save the wings and tail which are black. All the tail feathers are broadly spotted with white at the tips and the bases of the central ones are grey. On each wing there is a white patch which is only visible from below; the iris is bright crimson. The family which includes the Minivets and the Cuckoo-Shrikes is classified between the Shrikes and the Drogons and its members possess characteristics of both. We have once recorded the Grey Minivet but no other representative of this interesting family. La Touche says for the distribution of this bird "All China, except the extreme North (summer)" March 3rd certainly is not summer in Hong Kong.

REMARKABLE SOLAR SPECTACLE

Multi-Coloured Halo Seen Round Sun.

DUE TO WATER CRYSTALS

Cape Town.

A solar spectacle of an unusual type was witnessed throughout the Cape Peninsula. It lasted more than an hour.

The sun was surrounded by a multi-coloured circular halo 40 times its own size. Towards its centre the disc was a brownish red tint which changed to blue towards the outside. The extreme edge of the remarkable phenomenon was almost white in colour and well defined, making a sharp contrast with the distant blue sky in which it appeared to hang motionless.

Some observers saw the halo as a huge quivering mass of colours, dark brownish red predominating with flickerings of red and blue.

As soon as the spectacle appeared, anxious calls were put through by telephone to the Royal Observatory.

Many people asked outright whether the phenomenon had anything to do with the end of the world, while others, more cautious, simply sought an expert explanation of its origin.

Dr. Jackson, His Majesty's Astronomer at the Cape said it was a meteorological phenomenon. "I examined the phenomenon myself," he said. "It was a circular halo of a well-known type and was 22 1/2 degrees in diameter. The sun is one-half a degree so that it was more than 40 times as big as the sun. It was coloured, slightly red towards the centre and blue towards the outside.

"A good deal of thin cloud was about at the same time. "I think," said Dr. Jackson, "that the halo was due to water crystals in the high atmosphere. I have seen it often with the moon, but not with the sun."—Reuter.

There is ONLY ONE Ovaltine

THERE are definite reasons why delicious "Ovaltine" is the supreme tonic food beverage.

The formula and scientific processes employed in the preparation of "Ovaltine" cannot be copied. It is made from the highest qualities of malt extract, fresh creamy milk and new-laid eggs. There is no indigestible starch in "Ovaltine," nor does it contain large percentages of cheaper ingredients—such as sugar and cocoa—to reduce the price.

Every drop of "Ovaltine" is pure, concentrated, health-giving nourishment. Its ingredients are so perfectly balanced to the needs of the body and are so easily assimilated that its regular use strengthens instead of overtaxing the digestive organs. As you value your health, reject substitutes.

RUSSIAN GIRL JOINS PARENTS IN NEW ZEALAND

Parted By Revolution When A Baby.

4,000 MILES THROUGH SIBERIA

Sydney, N.S.W.

Little Galina Bogatoff, heroine of a Russian drama of real life dating back to the tragic days of the revolution, arrived in Sydney recently by the Atsuta Maru, on her way to New Zealand to join her parents, whom she has never known, and never seen except as a baby in arms.

Through an interpreter, Galina Bogatoff related the story of her journey of 4,000 miles through Siberia to Vladivostok, en route to Japan, after having been traced through the agency of the Red Cross to a remote part of Russia.

Galina is a sturdy girl, and, according to the interpreter, a typical Russian. She knows only two or three words of English, which cannot nearly express her appreciation of all that has been done for her, especially by the big network of Red Cross organisations.

As Galina was leaving the boat, Miss Rosa Piper, a member of the executive of the New South Wales Red Cross Society, handed her a little parting gift. Galina replied sweetly, "thank you very much."

The interpreter, Peter Sunaklis, a wharf labourer, was no less astonished than the others present.

"Galina," he inquired, "who taught you that bit of English."

"I have learned it on board ship," she replied, with a happy smile, through the interpreter.

"I made a point of learning it because I have been treated so wonderfully and I want to say 'Thank you' to everyone. I am going to learn a lot more English when I go to school in my new home."

She was asked how she liked the idea of going to live in New Zealand.

A puzzled look came into her brown eyes, "I don't know," she said to the interpreter, "But I am very happy."

She fairly bubbled over with feelings of gratitude. Just before she went down the gangway, she was asked if there was anyone she specially wanted to thank and say good-bye to. "Yes," she said, "I want to say good-bye to the captain and the little Russian who was touching."

400 Miles Through Snow

"I was only about a year old when I was separated from my parents," she said, through the interpreter, "but my auntie has told me of those terrible days. To save their lives, my mother and father had to escape. I was then only a baby. They were I am told, faced with a terrible journey of about 400 miles through the snow. They suffered hardships and I fell ill. They would have died if they had stayed with me, and I, too, would have died. So they left me to the care of friendly people, and again pushed on over the snow. Escaping from Russia, they finally found themselves in the beautiful country that I am now going to—New Zealand."

Tears began to well up into Galina's eyes. Press photographers came on the scene, and she was asked to smile before a big battery of cameras. Again she was a happy, carefree girl. The shadows of the revolution had been momentarily eclipsed.

Galina said that, since she was separated from her parents 11 years ago, she has been well treated, and her sturdy little figure and bright face tell their own story. It was mainly through the international organisation of the Red Cross, after long years of exhaustive inquiries, that she was traced to a town in Siberia, where she was then staying with an aunt, with whom, on route to Japan, on the voyage to New Zealand, she travelled about 4,000 miles through thick black hair, and charming was not under the direct care of her aunt, she was under the watchful eye of one of the Red Cross organisations.

Sydney Bridge "Very Good" She was asked what she thought of the Sydney Harbour Bridge. "Very good," she said, with an air of detachment. Her mind was that they were there to see her across the water, in New Zealand, safely on her way to New Zealand. Miss Piper and Miss Gladys—Reuter.

WOLF CUB PACK RALLY

Leader Clifton Large's Distinction.

ST. ANDREW'S PACK PROVE SUCCESSFUL

A splendid model of a Scouts' Camp by Leader Clifton Large, of the St. Andrew's Pack (which gained the first prize in the Model Competition, proved to be the deciding factor in the award of the Totem Pole to the St. Andrew's Pack, at the Rally of Wolf Cub Packs yesterday in the grounds of St. Andrew's Church and the Central British School.

The St. Andrew's Pack tied with the Peak Pack in the other competitions staged throughout the afternoon.

A large number of parents and friends were present including, the Rev. G. T. Waldegrave, Scout Commissioner, the Right Rev. Bishop Ronald Hall, and Mrs. Hall, the Rev. W. W. Rogers and Mrs. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ritchie, Mr. and Mrs. S. Berg, Mr. and Mrs. P. Franklin, Mr. and Mrs. L. H. V. Booth, Mr. and Mrs. O. C. Womack, The Rev. N. V. Halward, Cub mistresses, Deep Sea Scouts and Scouts of the St. Andrew's (1st Kowloon) and Tenth Hong Kong troops.

A very entertaining programme of games and competitions were held, the little cubs showing a thorough knowledge of the various phases of scouting and proving themselves smart and efficient.

The dances were extremely well rendered and the Final Grand Howl, led by Leader Clifton Large, was most impressive.

Tea was served after the programme, and following the exhibition of the models, built by the cubs themselves, many of which were clever and original, the Totem Pole, the equivalent of the Scouts' Prince of Wales' Banner, was awarded to the St. Andrew's Pack.

LOCAL NEWS BREVITIES

The R.K.O. Radio production "Flying Down to Rio" will be screened at the King's Theatre today and not at the Central as stated on page 2 of our illustrated supplement.

A Tea Dance will be held at Repulse Bay Hotel to-day at 4.30 p.m.

The Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps will be inspected by His Excellency the G.O.C. at Murray Parade Ground on Thursday, March 22, at 6 p.m.

Two cases each of enteric fever and meningitis, and one case of diphtheria, are shown in the return of notifiable diseases for the 24 hours ending March 9.

The annual dinner of the Institution of Engineers and Shipbuilders of Hong Kong will be held at the rooms of the Institution on Friday, March 23, at 8.30 p.m.

Tenders for the supply of provisions and other necessities for the year ending March 31, 1935, for the Royal Naval Hospital, are invited.

We are informed that Messrs. A. Salmon and Son have opened The Wicker Shop at 98 Ice House Street, where they are displaying some very attractive lines in wicker ware.

Richardson accompanied the superintendent of the New South Wales Red Cross organisation (Mr. H. L. Pitt) on board to welcome Galina, who was later motored to the home of the Chairman of the Red Cross executive (Mr. R. J. Hawkes).

As the boat drew up to the wharf she was quickly identified. In the cast of her features, the blue beret covering a wealth of thick black hair, and charming little smile, revealing perfect teeth, there was no mistaking the physical likeness of the young Russian. She smiled when Mr. Pitt, Miss Piper and Miss Richardson came along; but her arms affectionately round her, told her, through an interpreter, who they were, and that they were there to see her across the water, in New Zealand, safely on her way to New Zealand. Miss Piper and Miss Gladys—Reuter.

Midshipman Pearce Laid To Rest.

FULL NAVAL HONOURS

With full Naval honours the funeral took place yesterday afternoon of Midshipman H. C. B. Pearce, of the H.M.S. "Cumberland," who was fatally injured in a motor accident on Friday afternoon near Fanling. The Rev. F. N. Chamberlain, H.M. Dockyard Chaplain officiated.

The cortege included deceased's brother and many Naval officers. The South Wales Borderers were represented by Lieut. Home and 2nd Lieut. Llewellyn, and the Royal Artillery by Lt. Raven Hill, Lt. Skeay and Lt. Lane.

The gun-carriage crew and the firing squad were drawn from the men of H.M.S. "Cumberland," and the band of the Royal Marines preceded the column, playing the Dead March in Saul.

Floral tributes were sent from the following:

Captain and Mrs. Cyril Benson, Commander and Warrant Officers' Mess, The Ward Room Officers, H.M.S. "Cumberland," The Gunroom Officers H.M.S. "Cumberland," Ship's Company, H.M.S. "Cumberland," The Captain, Ward Room Officers and Warrant Officers, H.M.S. "Berwick," The Gun Room Officers, H.M.S. "Berwick," The General Officer Commanding and Officers Head Quarters Staff, China Command, The Officers, 1st Bn. South Wales Borderers, Lt. Col. Marsh and Officers of the 2nd East Lancashire Regt., C. R. A. and Officers, Royal Artillery, The "Duncan" Team, The Captain, Committee and Members, Royal Hong Kong Golf Club.

Midshipman Noel Was At The Wheel.

DR. GRAY AND WIFE LEND AID

It is now learned that Midshipman Noel was at the wheel of the car which involved in the fatal accident, near the 23 mile stone on the Fanling Road. The two naval officers were returning to Kowloon via Castle Peak.

Dr. Gray, who was accompanied by his wife, came upon the scene soon after the accident, and rendered medical assistance.

Midshipman Noel was very badly shaken, but Midshipman Pearce, who was lying unconscious with a badly wounded head, died before the ambulance arrived.

REPUBLICANS SNUBBED BY GEN. HERTZOG

Empire Freedom Sufficient.

PREMIER'S REPLY RAISES LAUGHTER

Johannesburg.

General J. B. Hertzog, the South African Prime Minister, will not have anything to do with Republicanism. He considers that South Africa's freedom within the British Empire is sufficient for everybody.

Accordingly he administered a sharp snub to the Rand Republicans who requested him recently to include republican guarantees in the constitution of the projected United Party.

At a meeting of Republican sympathisers here, under the chairmanship of Senator T. C. Visser, the Prime Minister's reply to the request was read to the gathering. It was dated the day after the dispatch of the request, and read as follows:

"General Hertzog has instructed me to acknowledge the receipt of your letter in which you acquaint him of the decision of the committee of the Republican Bond, Witwatersrand Division. Yours faithfully, (sgd.) J. DU PLESSIS, Private Secretary."

The reading of this reply sent a titter of laughter through the meeting, which was later asked to adopt a resolution deploring the Prime Minister's attitude. The resolution was not put to the meeting, but one thanking Dr. D. F. Malan for his very courteous reply to a similar request was adopted with acclamation.

In the course of a lengthy reply Dr. Malan said that although the Cape Nationalist Party "does not regard Republican action through the party as a matter of practical politics for the present, it regards it as being important that the Republican ideal should be kept alive"—Reuter.

"FLYING DOCTOR" AT PENINSULA.

Brief Stay In Colony On Honeymoon.

NORTH QUEENSLAND PERSONALITY

An interesting personality staying at the Peninsula Hotel is Dr. Vickers of Cloncurry, N.W. Queensland, Australia, who is in Hong Kong for a few days on his honeymoon.

Dr. Vickers is known throughout North Queensland and the Northern Territory as "The Flying Doctor"—he has a plane at Cloncurry, his centre, and it is all in his day's work to attend to patients in places as far away as Anthony's Lagoons, Burketown etc. He often brings serious cases many hundred miles in his plane to hospital.

STILL NO TRACE OF MISSING BOY.

Theatre Manager's Son.

Enquiries late last night at the office of Mr. C. Goldin, manager of the Star Theatre, whose son George, aged 14, was reported missing from St. Joseph's College since Friday noon, solicited the fact that no traces of the boy's whereabouts have yet been discovered. The boy has been missing on several previous occasions. He was missing for several months on the last occasion and was found later in Canton. He returned to the Colony about six weeks ago.

Personal Pars.

Mr. Wu Min-tun, of the Canton Kuomintang Executive Yuan, arrived in the Colony on Friday evening, and will spend the next three days here.

Dr. Lo Wen-kan, the Minister of Justice in the Nanking Government, is expected to leave here shortly for the North, and will arrive in Shanghai on or about March 26.

Capt. P. B. Jolley, Commissioner for Customs at Holbow, with his wife and family, is spending a few days in Hong Kong, and is staying at the Peninsula Hotel.

Christ's Fight Against Temptation

Terror Overcome By Power Of Prayer

LESSONS FROM HIS SACRIFICE

(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

In the article of last Sunday, we commenced to think of the temptations of Christ in the wilderness, to test the truth of the statement that "He was in all points tempted as we are and was yet without sin."

We saw how He refused to turn the stones into bread because He would never use the power that was His for His own ends. Then how He refused to throw Himself from the pinnacle of the Temple, and bring in His Kingdom by magic instead of founding it deep on the fact of the love and sacrifice of God, to take the line of least resistance.

Then came the third. The desert vanished from His sight and He saw for a moment His promised Kingdom—the whole world before Him bathed in the sunlight with its cities and palaces, its armies and peoples, grand and powerful bowing in homage to the Lord who made it.

How to bring happiness and comfort to that world was His one thought. But how was He to do it?

There were several alternatives. He might do it as another of the world's great religious leaders did afterwards—by force or He could ally Himself with the great ones of the world—the power of Imperial Rome, or locally with the leaders of the Jewish Faith. What, after all, was the good of one man trying to do such an enormous thing—making the powers that really count His enemies. What the tempter said was largely true. We can win some portion of the world and its glories if we are content to pay the devil's price—to compromise and—bargain with those who seem to be the world's masters.

But He would have no compromise. He chose the long slow painful process of love and surrender, committing Himself to men to do with as they would. It would take many centuries to do it; 2000 years have passed and it is not done yet. But the day will come when the "Kingdoms of this world" will be the Kingdoms of our God and He will reign for ever and ever.

For this steep and difficult path of duty, He was offered an easy road, level and alluring, at the cost of a little homage to evil. Definitely He turned it down, and the devil left Him in peace for a little space.

Three Years Of Hardship

Three years passed on—years of devotion to duty, years of toil and loneliness and want, when He was misunderstood, maligned, scorned, and rejected save by a few. Must not the days in the wilderness have often recurred to His mind, and being human, wondered whether He had not been very foolish after all—chosen the wrong pathway?

And so we pass on to the last, and most awful temptation that came at the end. That in the moonlit garden of Gethsemane, on the night of His betrayal, when the thought of side-tracking the awful agony that lay before Him must have swept over His spirit like the cold hand of death. There came over Him the sickening fear that comes to a man when he has to go "over the top." It took Him by the throat as it took many of us not so many years ago.

It made Him sweat great drops like blood. He went away by Himself and fell on His face. He was so utterly human. He had nerves like us. In His agony of terror He cried "Father if it be possible let this cup pass from me." That was His cry, but remember it was not His prayer. That was that against which He was praying. It was His cry of terror. It has helped some of us to know that He, the finest, the best, the incarnate Son of God had to meet human terror once and that He overcame it by the power of prayer. Three times the cry of terror went up from His lips, but He met it with His great prayer "Father Thy will be done." That was His prayer—duty first, far and away first. "Let them take by body, hang me up battered and mocked and bleeding, but God give me strength through it all to keep a strong unbroken spirit to the end."

Then the answer came. The terror died. Once more He was supreme master of Himself. He rose from the ground of that moonlit garden with His teeth set and His shoulders square. Fearless to the end He bore a world of sorrow to the Cross and died a death so grand and heroic that men and women have knelt before Him all down the ages in wonder and worship, ever since. Two things stand out from those temptations.

That the one to Whom we confess our failures can sympathise without temptations. Sympathy For Weak The fact that He did not yield does not make that sympathy the less. Think of it like this. There are three of us—brothers—straining up a mountain steep. Half way up my breaking point comes. My brother gets three-quarters of the way and then he falls. He can sympathise with me. He knows. But the eldest one, panting beside me, trying to cheer me, on refuses to give in. Night is coming but he struggles along. Through stress and strain he wins to the top. Can he not sympathise with me as much as the brother who had failed? He had suffered more than either of us.

2. He had done what the other brother had failed to do. He had shown me the possibility of winning. From the wilderness of His own temptations, His voice rings out across the centuries; "Come on and win, for you can win. There is no reason why you should not. You have lost heart. You have been talking about the power of temptation and the sadness of failure. It is all very touching, very sentimental. But it is also rather cowardly. And it is not true."

"Be a man. Try again in My strength. I took your humanity to show you what humanity can do. I fought beside you, as a man, with no more help than you have—nothing but simple faith in God. Mine was an infinitely harder fight than yours. And I won. Because I won in the greater fight, you in the lesser fight can win also."

FRAUD CASE FOR FIRST COURT.

Hearing To-morrow Afternoon.

The preliminary hearing of the case of fraud against Jose Lizarraga, 35, of Manila, Wong Sau-mo, 29 of Shanghai, and Nicholas Levitsky, alias Mecan, alias Levin, alias Macon, alias Soman, a Russian, has been transferred to the First Court, to be heard by Mr. E. W. Hamilton, owing to the impending departure on leave of Mr. S. Balfour.

Mr. Hamilton fixed the hearing for to-morrow, at 2.15 p.m., when the Crown's case will be opened. Defendants were remanded on their former bail of $5,000 each.

Mr. R. H. Cole is defending Lizarraga, Mr. M. A. da Silva is appearing for Wong, and the third defendant is unrepresented. Mr. T. S. Whyte-Smith is conducting the case on behalf of the Crown.

LONDON TOPICS

From
OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.
London, Feb. 21.

Dockyard Politics

North Portsmouth has returned a Conservative ever since 1906.

Sir Bertram Falle, one of the new peers created in the New Year Honours, fought it unsuccessfully in both the 1910 elections as a Liberal-Unionist. He was defeated by Lord Charles Beresford.

It is a dockyard seat, like Mr. Hore-Bellish's at Devonport. Consequently the Socialists will not be able to put over their usual propaganda. They will not be able to say: "Let us make war on Japan in the interest of the Chinese workers, but do not let us put a tariff on Japanese imports in the interest of the British workers."

The University By-Election

The candidature of Dr. G. A. Morrison for the vacant seat at the Scottish Universities will probably be opposed. He was nominated by the powerful Educational Institute, which has hitherto regarded these seats as its preserve. He has also been adopted by the Edinburgh University Liberal Association.

Many of the students, however, are hostile to the teachers who compose the Institute. They want to run a Scottish Nationalist candidate.

Three men are being mentioned—Sir Alexander MacEwen, who recently piddled well at Kilmarnock; Mr. A. D. Gibb, a barrister, who wrote "Scotland in Eclipse," and Mr. David Cleghorn Thomson, a young Liberal, who was for some time in charge of broadcasting in Scotland.

"Nazi Orchestra"

The Berlin Philharmonic Orchestra, which played in London recently has been called "a Nazi orchestra."

The suggestion that the orchestra might receive a hostile demonstration similar to that of which Herr Werner Krauss was the victim seems to be a case of the wish being father to the thought.

Any such demonstration against one of the finest orchestras in the world would not only be unfair but supremely ridiculous.

The Berlin Philharmonic is not a political body in any sense. It is "Nazi" only in that it exists under Nazi regime.

The Death Penalty

A world in which life is growing steadily cheaper (the use of the word is, of course, figurative) is periodically exercised about the death penalty.

The House of Commons are once more to vote on the question of its abolition.

In a Bill which he hopes to introduce next month Mr. Vyvyan Adams takes his cue from the Select Committee's recommendations, and proposes abolition of the penalty for an experimental period of five years.

On a previous occasion the Commons were so evenly divided on the subject that there was a majority of only one in favour of permitting a Bill to be introduced.

The debate on Mr. Adams's Bill, which, if it is crowded out, may have to be introduced under the 10-minute rule, is not likely to be epoch-making.

The old arguments will be trotted out, rather like pleaders' nags into a bullring. They are hardly likely to prevail against that reactionary and intolerant animal.

The Admiral and Portsmouth

If Conservative headquarters have their way Admiral Sir Roger Keyes will not be the candidate in Portsmouth.

The local executive have adopted him, by their association. The executive recognise in him a strong candidate with a powerful local appeal. But the Central Office want a man who will sound the National Government note loudly and clearly.

They regard the Admiral as approximating too nearly to the strictly Conservative line. And the Central Office have a strong National complex.

In the selection of a candidate the local association have the last word. It can be influenced by Headquarters, but any suggestion of bullying generally results in resistance.

More Japanese Competition

British industry, already suffering severely from Japanese competition, has had another knock.

IMPERSONATOR IN COLONY

Escapes From Turks As A Woman

RECITAL IN MONTH'S TIME

Mr. Bobbie de Leys, an extemporist of high repute, arrived in the Colony on Friday.

Mr. de Leys, who is an accomplished impersonator, singer, musician and dancer, is going on to Canton to-day, where he will study Chinese Music for a month. When he returns, he will give a recital at one of the local theatres, prior to leaving for Shanghai.

Mr. de Leys, who is an ex-Serviceman, took part in the Command Performance at the Coliseum in 1921, when a party of ex-soldiers entertained Their Majesties.

During the War he was taken prisoner by the Turks, but, owing to his amazing impersonation abilities, he managed to escape disguised as a woman.

It is interesting to note that at his recitals, Mr. de Leys plays only music of his own composition. He is very accomplished on the harp.

bassy.

In the top game the F.B.I., represented by its President, Sir George Beharrell, and its Managing Director, Mr. Guy Loeck, were beaten by six and four by the Japanese Ambassador and the First Secretary. The First Secretary, a single handed player, drove and approached like Bobby Jones. Mr. Matsudaira, the Ambassador, was a deadly putter.

In the second match, which was a naval and military encounter, Mr. Julian Piggott and Mr. A. H. Pollen, beat the Japanese Naval and Military Attaches on the seventeenth green.

The main honours, however, and the balance of holes remained with the Japanese.

BANKRUPTCY PETITION

Run On Native Banks Recalled.

PARTNER BEARS BRUNT

The collapse of several Chinese natives Banks in October last, following a run by the creditors, was recalled at the Bankruptcy proceedings held at the Supreme Court yesterday when the adjourned public examination of Mr. Pun Hui Cho, managing partner of the Shun Loong and Cheung Loong Bank was concluded before Mr. Justice A. D. A. MacGregor.

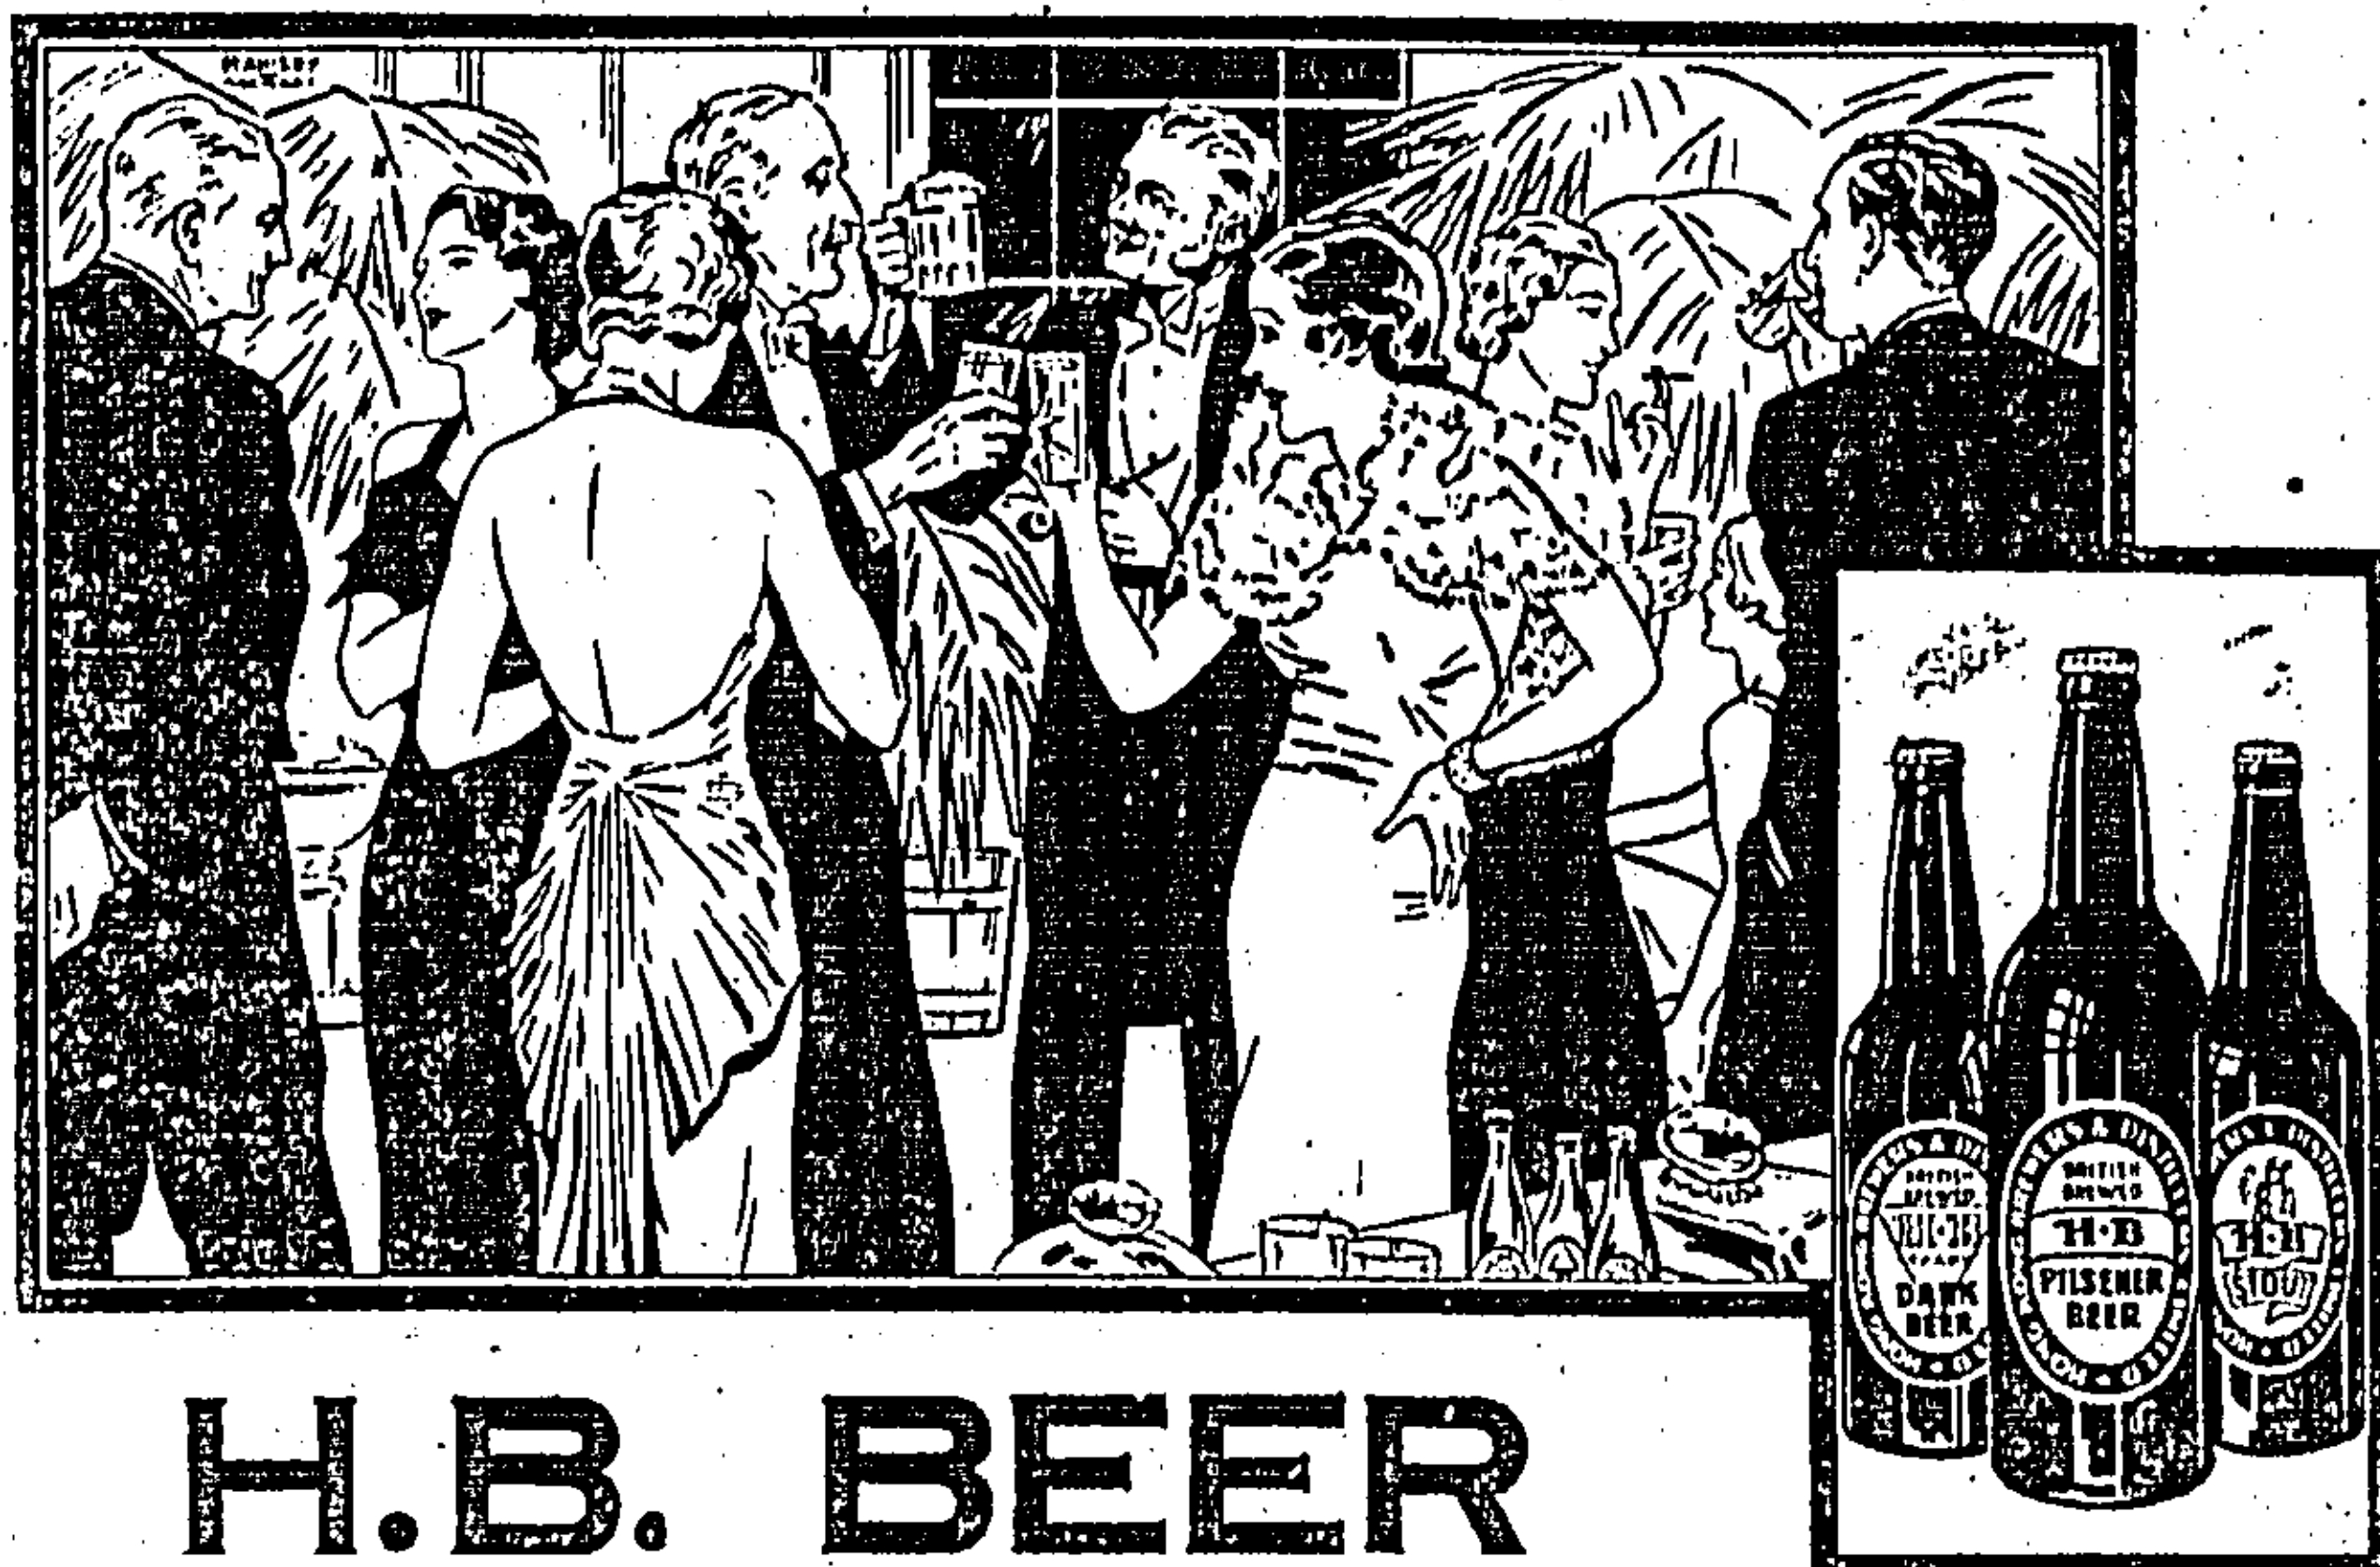

Witness said that all the other officials of the two Banks absconded, leaving him to bear the brunt of the liabilities.

A petition made by Wong Cho, trading as the Nam Kwong Brothers' Handkerchief and Garter Company, was dismissed, but petitions by the Kowloon Silk Store and the Butterfly Piece Goods and Silk Store were granted.

DANCING BUTTERFLY PAYS $226.60 DIVIDEND

Well-Judged Race

Mr. Deltz was responsible for 272 backers receiving $23 on the "daily double" when he won convincingly on Soldier of Italy after being led for three-fourths of the race by Kitsap (Mr. Frost), the third favourite. It was a well-judged race.

Kitsap secured second place, while Tolshan (Mr. Fung) just got the verdict over Brass Idol (Mr. Chang) for third place. Skiddaw (Mr. Black) and Bran Tub (Mr. Heard), second favourite, were fifth and sixth.

When Mr. Frost got away to a good start on Flying Tourist and secured the rails behind The Tiger (Mr. Harriman) and Mike (Mr. Chanson) it looked as if Mr. Woo Pak Wing was going to win his first race with his new pony, but the superior fitness of Bright Star was clearly evident at the Rock where the race was more or less decided. It was not, however, until a furlong from the post that Mr. Llang sent Bright Star into the lead to win by a length in the nick of time.

Sporting Life (Mr. Pan) was third, and Wakefield (Mr. Butler) and Valorous (Mr. Heard) were on level terms for fourth place.

The public had this race well summed up, the favourites finishing in the order nominated by the pari-mutuel.

Mutiny Bay Fallers

The fast pace set by Portia (Mr. Proulx) tended to make the Moonie Ponds Handicap a false race, and Mutiny Bay (Mr. Butler), the favourite, was kept alongside Woodland Stag (Mr. Frost) throughout the race only to allow the former champion to come through in the home straight and record a popular win.

Portia had secured a tremendous advantage at the football stands were Lady Peel's Lucy Glitters (Mr. Black) and Alacrity (Mr. Chang) were lying second and third. At the Rock, Alacrity was second, but Portia and Lucy Glitters were falling back.

In the home straight, Woodland Stag came through on the outside, and, despite the frantic efforts of Mr. Butler, beat the favourite by two lengths to pay $16.70 and clock 1.17.5 secs. slower time than Nell Gwyn's record-breaking effort.

Mr. Chang secured third place on Alacrity from Night Star (Mr. A. Botelho), Lucy Glitters, and Portia in that order.

Mr. Leo Frost, who is leaving for Australia, with Mrs. Frost, by the Taiping on Tuesday, was given a great ovation by the crowd as he was led in—the last winner of the day.

FIRST DIVISION.

GUNNERS UNLUCKY TO LOSE.

Club Secure Undeserved Brace Of Points.

PARDOE MISSES PENALTY

The Artillery were decidedly unlucky at the Valley yesterday when they lost to the Club by 2 goals to 1. Two lucky breakaways in the first half, one of which resulted in a penalty being awarded to them, gave the Club their two goals for an undeserved victory.

The R.A. attacked from the commencement of the game, Rodger, the Club custodian, making a remarkable save when he dived full length to push round the post a low hard drive directed for the bottom left hand corner by Knight, from about 12 yards range.

The Club's first goal was the outcome of a penalty awarded after ten minutes played. The Club broke away and Durham, the Artillery goalkeeper, ran out to deal with a long high shot from the left which he fumbled. Drown then ran through towards the empty goal with the ball, but Durham penalty kick was converted by Syd. Strange.

From the kick off the Artillery ran through only to meet with a stubborn defence in Strange who played a very hard game. The Club then broke away from this concentrated attack, the ball travelling up the left wing for Drown to send in a neat centre to E. Strange who gave Durham no chance with a fierce drive which hit the roof of the net.

After this goal the Artillery were seldom out of the Club's area, having exceedingly hard luck on several occasions.

The Artillery were awarded a penalty kick for a foul by Duncan against Pardoe, who took the kick and shot directly at the goalkeeper.

Pardoe, again shot, from five yards range, but wide of the post.

The Artillery's tactics met with well-merited success about ten minutes before the end of play when Pardoe pushed the ball through past the Club's backs for Knight to score with a shot which gave Rodger no possible chance.

Club:—Rodger; Hill, Strange; Dorniney, Duncan, Gamble; Fowler, Duncan, E. Strange, E. Drown and Baldwin.

Artillery:—Durham; Worthington, Wroe, Hunt, Pardoe, Harris, Forbes, Fisher, Wood, Knight and Seal.

RECREIO DESERVED MORE THAN A DRAW.

Blackburn Saves Police From Defeat.

GOALLESS DRAW.

At King's Park yesterday the Recreio shared the points with the Police in a goalless draw.

From the kick-off the Police attacked strongly and came near to scoring on several occasions, and had it not been for sound play by Bowen and Silva Netto, would almost certainly have scored. The Recreio replied with good advances, but McHardy was very reliable in goal and averted several possible goals.

The game was very fast, and passing on both sides was swift and accurate. Silva Netto and Bowen accomplished a great deal in the Recreio defence, and played a good game throughout. Shortly before the interval some excitement was caused when Santos made a brilliant sprint down the wing to send in a very good attempt at goal for the Recreio, but the shot was successfully diverted.

Resuming after the interval the Recreio again attacked strongly and exchanges remained fast. The brothers Castilho played excellently, and all the Recreio forwards showed very good understanding. The Police defence was not too secure, and Blackburn was mainly responsible for preventing a Recreio score.

SECOND DIVISION.

South China Score Six Times.

Y. INDIANS OUT-PLAYED

At Caroline Hill yesterday, the Young Indians proved no match for the South China second string, and the home team ran out easy winners by six clear goals.

South China took the lead eight minutes from the start through LAI SHUI WING, who headed past Ahmed from Chow's centre.

A few minutes later, Lai sent in a pile-driver, which Ahmed could only partially clear, and IP KOON NING scored with an unstoppable shot.

The Young Indians were forced on the defensive throughout, and it was only a matter of the time before South China added to their score. IP KOON NING added South China's third goal, and just before the interval, CHUNG CHUI YING raced through on his own to score the fourth goal.

The second half was a repetition of the first, with the South China forwards indulging in shooting practice. Ahmed saved shots from all angles, but LAI SHUI WING scored two more goals to bring South China's total to six.

South China:—Chui Shui-hong; Ma Ping-cheong, Yui Hing-yuen; Yau Wok-hing, Lam Tak-po, George Yung; Ip Koon-ning, Ho Chui-wing, Chung Chui-yung, Lai Shui-wing and Chow Kwam-kwong.

Young Indians:—Ahmed; A. M. Omar, O. M. Omar; Marker, Azim, Baker; Yau, Hamet, Abbas, Rahmin, and Arculli.

THIRD DIVISION.

Darby's Four Goals For Sappers.

BORDERERS SURPRISED.

The Royal Engineers sprung a surprise on the South Wales Borderers at Sookunpoo yesterday when they beat them in an interesting game by 4 goals to 1.

The South Wales Borderers scored very early in the game through PURCELL.

The Sappers scored their opening goal soon after when, after some excellent passing DARBY received the opportunity and with only the goalkeeper to beat at very close range scored with a swift shot.

The Sappers made excellent attacks and were soon rewarded when DARBY, receiving a fine pass from the left wing, converted with a long shot.

DARBY completed his "hat-trick" soon after the interval for the Sappers on scoring their third goal. Just before the final whistle DARBY noded his fourth goal.

JUNGLE MYSTERY

An Error In Latitude

"I have so, and thank you kindly, Cap. Is it worth another, boys?" said Morrison. The gang declared it was, and somebody woke the bar-boy. Then after a duly liquefied interregnum the skipper took up his tale.

"Well, as I was saying, I was introduced, and I fell at once, fell hard. Boys, Zanetta Mortimer had all the attributes of the perfect lady as I laid them down to you, all of them—and then some."

Word went round the ship of the beauty in the second class, and I'm telling you the poop deck got a lot of attention that trip. The mates off watch could always find a job about the poor lifeboats, and the engineers worked overtime at the hand steering gear continuous. All to make a chance to pass the time of day with the little lady in the deck chair. And we all got the same welcome, the same entertainment, and the same cold flop. Not that she was nasty about it. Not at all. Just done with the eyes. Just think on the lantern the traffic cop works at the cross roads. One moment—"Road Clear." Next, you'd passed the speed limit—"Road Closed." And done with a smile. Left you hopeless, but not hurt. The tact of the perfect lady.

The first-class got up the usual sing-song after leaving Darwin, and of course the second-class was invited. There was some good-looking in the first-class, but when Zanetta came along she made all of them fraus look just like nothing at all. And dressed, say, she had them beat a mile. Class, my lad, class all over—that was Zanetta. And when she sat down to the piano and played and sang, why the heart of every man-jack in that saloon was a colt mat for her sweet little tootsies. Many a two bob has Harry Rickards had out of me for nothing near so good.

One morning when I came off the bridge at four o'clock I found the Second in my cabin. As it was his watch in the engine-room, "What in hell?" said I, and "the Third's carrying on," said he, and I knew it was something serious.

"I was talking to Miss Mortimer last night," he said, "you'll observe she was still Miss Mortimer to all of us, though she might be Zanetta in our heart of hearts—I was talking to her, and you know we've all been wondering what she was going to do in the Far East. Well, last night she told me. She's going as lady-entertainer at the 'Prince Imperial'!"

Say, boys, you could have knocked me down with a toothpick. "What, you dive? You low-down, disreputable, God-forgotten pub, the disgrace of sailor-town, the endevous of all the bums, beach-cumbers, bladders, pimps, and broken men from Vladivostok to Singapore. You're wrong. You can't mean it? What did you say?"

"It's a fact, and I said nothing," said he. "Hell, I would n't tell that lady what she's up against for a mint of money. I would... I would marry her first!"

"Darnit! We would all marry her before it came to that," I said, and I groaned, for it seemed unbelievable. Her, with her beauty, her class, her daintiness, tied to you, hell-hole.

"Stop grunting!" says the Second, "and think of something! Someone's got to tell her. She thinks it's a decent joint."

So I thought, and "There's only one man for the job if he'll take it," I said, "and that's Dad."

"Dad," says he, "the Chief, you mean. But he hardly knows her. 'Nevermind, he'll do it. He's a diplomat, as all the Coast knows. Can't he take Superintendents and Owners and such truck by the arm and walk them up and down the deck and get what he wants out of place in the engine-room, and he has a heart of gold—look how he carries you for Second! He has the fine fatherly way with him too. He'll break it gently to her. He's the one."

"Yes, a white man he was if there ever was one, old Dad Cochran, some of you boys may have known him?—no!—well he went down in the old Glen-Trool, in the typhoon of 1906."

So after breakfast the Second and me formed ourselves into a deputaton, and went round and laid the matter before Dad. Dad took the job on, though we could see he did n't like it. But he saw it as his duty, and he was always strong on duty was Dad. It will come better from me than from young scamps like you," he says. "Anyhow, it's got to be done. No lady can go to a place like 'The Prince Imperial' without fair warning—not while I'm on deck."

That night when he came out of the saloon after dinner he stopped at the messroom door. "I spoke to Miss Mortimer as you suggested," he said. She took it hard, poor girl. She was under the impression she was engaged for a first-class hotel. I've seen the Skipper, and he'll put her case before the Company, and try for a passage back to Sidney. She says she has little money; but I told her not to worry, Hong Kong was on the boom at present, the boys wouldn't see a white woman beat. She'll be all right."

Well, we came to Hong Kong, and I was just seeing the after hatches off, when a voice behind me says, "Where vill I vind, Miss Mortimer?"

I turned round, and there was one of them slimy things, half-Dago, half-Dutchman, that's an offence and a sore in the eye of any decent human being.

This'll be the landlord of 'The Prince Imperial,' thinks I; and I was just wondering how I could best set about him to carve him up slowly and scientifically, when something large and blue passed me with a rush, and the dago disappeared high in the air and shot over the ship's rail.

"Now, that's most unkind of you," says I to the Second. "I was just considering how I could take him all to little pieces, and here you've flung him into the sea whole."

"Stea nothing," bawls the Second, "he's on a lighter."

We looked over, and glory be! It was even so. He had come down twenty-five feet on his ear on the steel deck of a Company's lighter, and was about the only good Dago I ever heard of, and that's a dead Dago. His chums pulled him into a sampan, and departed pronto, and Miss Mortimer's contract feel in then and there.

Well, the Superintendents came off, and the Skipper told them the tale, and introduced them to the lady that they might judge for themselves how impossible the thing was. Everything went just as the Chief prognosticated. The Company gave her a free passage back to Sidney, and headed the subscription list. All of us lads on the old ship dug down into our pants, and came up with a handful of money. The Second and me, having less money than anybody, coiled up each a month's pay. 'Tis the way of the world. The Supers chipped in, the office staff chipped in, other ships in port chipped in, the thing got into the papers and the general public chipped in. Altogether we raised about two thousand dollars for the lady, and everybody felt proud, and happy, and virtuous.

MOTORING NOTES

GREAT NATURAL SPEEDWAY

Salt Lake City Track Claimed World's Best.

Since the great natural speedway in Utah, near Salt Lake City, came into prominence it has naturally been suggested that this track is not only the best in the world for records but that it should be suitable for the very high speed of the world's mile and kilometre, hitherto attacked at Daytona.

The first advantage of this lake bed, which has been formed through the centuries by filling with water and then drying up, is that the surface of the bed proper is so hard that the flag-staffs necessary to make the course can only be driven in with the aid of a steel spike, but over this there lies a fluffy crust which has to be removed entirely from the whole of the track necessary for the record. The straight-away course could be from ten to twelve miles long, which is not over long for the Daytona-type cars, but a circular course of anything up to twenty miles can be laid out.

The actual salt bed is 125 miles directly west of Salt Lake City, and near Wendover, on a State railway, a small town with reasonably good accommodation—"The Auto-car."

EDUCATION IN TRAFFIC LAWS.

Before Leaving School.

In Southern California young people of both sexes undergo a course of instruction in traffic laws before leaving school; this is an excellent measure. A certain amount of "Safety First" instruction is given in a number of schools, but it is far from being general.

Another most interesting point in the Californian system is that juveniles who commit traffic offences are in most cases sent to a traffic school, there, after a course of practical lectures, undergoing an examination. If this is successfully passed the judge who assigned them to the school discharges them. And the result, it is stated, is that less than one per cent. commit another offence.

"MOVING LINE" SIGNAL.

The latest light signal for motorists is a "moving black line." It moves across the surface of the coloured lights—which, as in London, are automatically operated at important cross roads.

The idea is to indicate to motorists now much longer there is to go before the colour changes. In this way it is hoped that drivers will be able to judge for themselves whether they have time to cross before the red light appears.

The inventor of the device is Commander Mario Bedoni, the city's traffic director.

PANDEMONIUM FROM CAR RADIOS

Referring to the use of wireless sets in cars, one consideration appears to have been overlooked, says a correspondent to "The Autocar."

This is the pandemonium that could arise during traffic blocks, in car parks, and so forth, when cars have their sets on and probably tuned to different stations.

DISCOMFORT FROM ENGINE HEAT

Means Of Elimination.

A PRACTICAL FRENCH DEVICE

It often happens that during summer the heat radiated from the engine causes discomfort to the driver and the front-seat passenger. The dashboard is now usually made of metal, which probably tends to aggravate the warming-up of the front part of the body during a long run.

Some manufacturers are careful to see that the exhaust pipe is led off in such a way that the heat emanating from it will not cause discomfort to the motorist, and there are, too, cars in which the crankcase fumes are dissipated through a pipe whose outlet is well below the floor of the car, instead of through the ventilators of the familiar breather cap.

A very sensible and practical method has been adopted by a prominent French car manufacturer.

Instead of the customary single dashboard, or bulkhead, as it might be described, between the engine and the interior of the car, two pressed steel bulkheads are provided, having a wide air space between them.

A scuttle ventilator is mounted in such a position that the cool air is driven into the air space or compartment between the two bulkheads, and passes out at the bottom below the level of the flooring. The ventilator or air scoop is regulated by means of a control knob on the instrument board.

CAR HEAD-LAMP DAZZLE.

We do not wish any official regulations to be issued in connection with headlamp dazzle, but we do desire to emphasise the annoyance caused by the policy of switching out the right-hand lamp and leaving its fellow blazing straight ahead down the road. Probably, the majority of the offenders do not realise the inconvenience for which they are responsible, and the chances are that they are driving old cars produced before the modern dip and switch became so popular on British vehicles. If those who at present rely upon simply switching out the right-hand lamp and leaving the other alight and un-dipped will turn the left-hand lamp so that its direct beam leaves the road about thirty yards ahead of the car, they will be assisting other motorists at very little inconvenience to themselves.

FIRESTONE BATTERIES

The reason for the unusual performance of FIRESTONE Batteries is best understood when you know how they are made. Only highest grades of raw materials are used. More scientific compounding and processing and more efficient machinery have been developed. Only skilled workmen are employed. 30 to 34% more strength is built into the plates. Every Firestone Battery exceeds the rigid specifications of the American Society of Automotive Engineers. BRIDGE NOTES

PLAN BEFORE DECLARING!

It is of the greatest importance for the declarer to pause and plan before playing to the first trick. Here are some useful general rules:—

1. Do not take any risks in the play if you can get your contract without doing so.
2. Avoid unnecessary finessees.
3. Never risk your contract by trying for overtricks.

4. When playing a trump contract, it does not pay to lead out trumps on every occasion; it may be necessary in order to get your contract, to use some of dummy's trumps to ruff your own losers, or to get rid of losing cards in one hand by discarding them on winning cards in the other.

Below are two hands illustrating these points:

1. North South
S—A x x S—x x
H—A x x H—K Q x x
D—A Q x x D—J x
C—J 9 x C—A Q 10 x x

1. North South
North was playing the hand in 3 no trumps.

East opened the jack of spades, on which West correctly played the queen and returned the suit. The declarer quite rightly refused to play the ace until the third round, in order to exhaust West's spades. She then led the jack of clubs, played small from dummy, and West won with the king, and led back a diamond. North, tempted by the finessing position, made the fatal mistake of playing a low diamond. East took the trick with the king, and made her remaining two spades. The contract was thus defeated by one.

The opponents' hands were:
West East
S—Q x x S—K J 10 x x
H—J 10 9 x H—x x
D—x x x x D—K 10 x
C—K x C—x x x

The declarer, having taken the trouble to exhaust West's spades, as she intended to finesse the club, should have taken the first diamond lead with the ace, because she could see game with one trick in spades three in hearts, one in diamonds, and four in clubs. It is quite true that if West had been leading from the king of diamonds, North would have made two overtricks, but it was, emphatically, not worth risking the contract and game for a possible 60 points above the line.

Now for the second example: North was playing a contract of four hearts:

North South
S—x x x S—x
H—A K Q x x H—x x x
D—10 x x D—Q J x x x
C—A x C—K x x x

East opened with the queen of clubs, won by dummy's king. She then led out A.K.Q. of hearts to exhaust the enemy's trumps and, having done this, woke up to the fact that she must then lose two diamonds and 3 spades.

More Thought Needed
Had she thought a little harder after winning the first trick she would have seen that, in order to win nine more, she needed to use two of dummy's trumps to ruff her losing spades. Her second lead should therefore have been a small spade.

If the enemy had returned a trump, which was their best defence, she should have won the trick and ruffed a losing spade. Then she should have led a small club from dummy, taking it with the ace, and led a second spade for dummy to trump. She would then have made 7 trump tricks and 2 clubs, and must eventually have made a trick in diamonds.

CASTOR OIL OR GAOL.

Strange Sentence On Drunkards.

Philadelphia.
Three men hauled up in court in Philadelphia on charges of being drunk were offered a grim alternative. "A stiff dose of castor oil each—or 10 days in prison," the magistrate told them.

They took their medicine—literally.—Reuter.

An Error In Latitude

The shore gang introduced her to the bosoms of their families, and the ladies of the Colony sympathised with her and petted her. She sang a solo in the Cathedral choir on Sunday evening.

The money was handed over to her Metallik John, the super, in the saloon, and she went ashore to stay at the Hong Kong Hotel till her ship sailed. But before she left she went round the ship, and thanked us all so prettily. The Second said there was a tear in her eye. I didn't see it myself, because I was there was one in mine.

That day all of us boys on the Royal Mail was walking round on our toes feeling so good, so damned good. The members of the W. C. T. A. or the Church Rescue Society had nothing on us that day.

That was on the Saturday. On the Wednesday to every man-jack of us was delivered a scented, gilded envelope, and inside of that same was a card that read:—"Miss Zanetta Mortimer, No. 9, Gage Street, Gentlemen entertained."

"Good Lord!" cried Morrison, "One of those!" while the gang shouted. Then when the clamour had died down, "What did you do?" "Do, what could I do? What could anybody do. She had done the whole community blue mouldy, and that was all there was to it. But seeing you've asked me liddle, I'll tell you, and it's not ashamed I am of it either. I went into my cabin, and sat down, and shed tears.

I was hard hit, I was; and the Second, he was hard hit. So hard hit we was that next trip after leaving Sydney we never so much as spoke to a lady passenger till four days out."

RISKED LIFE TO RESCUE COWS.

Lorry Driver Dives Ten Feet Under Ice.

Stockholm.
Diving into 10 feet of icy water, a lorry driver has rescued two cows from the bottom of an arm of the sea.

He was taking them to market in his lorry, and when he tried to cross the frozen inlet, the ice broke and the lorry sank.

He fought his way clear from the cab and reached the surface; then remembered that the cows were tethered to the van. Borrowing a knife he dived in and loosed the animals which soon came up to the surface.

Some other men helped him to get the cows ashore and neither man nor beast was any the worse for the adventure.—Reuter.

SNAKE TRAPPED IN CAGE.

Wedged Between Bars After Meal.

Forbes, N.S.W.
The voracious appetite of a brown snake, five feet long, was the cause of its death at "Yarragons" station, out from Forbes.

The manager of the property, left a rare black and white butcher bird, a pet, in a cage inside the home-stand during his absence on the run.

When he returned he found that the bird had been swallowed by the snake, and that the reptile had been unable to withdraw its swollen neck from between the bars of the cage. It was quickly killed.—Reuter.

Rescue Thrills In Indian Ocean

Demented Man In Lifeboat.

DRAMA AFTER SHIPWRECK

Johannesburg (Transvaal).

A lifeboat struggling through mountainous seas, lashed by the tail-end of a cyclone, and the oarsmen suddenly faced with the task of dealing with a shell-shocked man who had lost his nerve and behaved like a madman.

This is the story vouched for by a Johannesburg seaman who has written a graphic letter to a relative describing the wreck of a coaster, on a reef in the Indian Ocean, east of Mombasa.

The narrative dealt with the rescue that took place on November 17. The man who tells the story is a seaman serving with the Dahli, which was at Mombasa when the S. O. S. signal was received from the island of Agalega, 1,250 miles away, where a coaster, the Wajao, had been wrecked on a reef during a cyclone.

The Dahli left immediately for the scene and arrived off the reef four days later.

"Seas Mountains High."

"Early in the morning there was a heavy wind and the seas were mountains high," writes the seaman, who adds laconically, "and I don't mean perhaps. We lowered away one of our lifeboats to pick up the crew and passengers of the stranded vessel, 46 in all, including two women and four children. I was in the boat, and as the result of my experience I never want to be stranded at sea. From seven

In the morning until five in the afternoon we battled with the sea, and we had only a quarter of a mile to pull from the ship.

"The fourth boat-load was the worst. I shall never forget it. We had 10 people in it and after being nearly swamped a dozen times, one of the crew, a shell-shocked man, lost his nerve and behaved like a madman.

"The boat was being tossed about like a shell and three of us had to seize him and hold him down. He was screaming all the time at the top of his voice.

"Eventually, after a nightmare trip, we came alongside and managed to lash him to a winch and heave him up with the windlass. Then he was strapped in his bunk until he recovered, which was the next day.

"The boat's crew were severely bruised, due to the boat being tossed about, but luckily there were no casualties. We will have our visitors with us for about a week. We intend to drop them at Mauritius. After leaving Mauritius we are going to the Solomon Islands, then to Sydney and Melbourne, and on the homeward voyage we shall call at Tamatave, Mombasa, Beira, Lourenco Marques, and then on to Cape Town about March 21."—Reuter.
